

Ellenville Man Dies In Rooming House Fire

By CHARLES BERMPOHL
After having been pulled to safety from a building fire early yesterday evening, an Ellenville man died late last night of burns received in the blaze which destroyed the upper two floors of a three-story rooming house in the Wawarsing village.

Lawrence Pietela, dragged from the flames at about 7:30 p.m. by the building owner's son, Mark Albert, died at Ellenville Community Hospital at 11:20 p.m.

Burns covered 90 per cent of his body, a hospital official explained.

The building is located at 136 Canal Street and houses Albert's Bakery and Nat's Men's Shop on the first floor with the two upper stories used as a rooming house.

The 25-year-old son of Sol Albert, owner of the building, was working in the bakery at the time of the fire.

Checked Upstairs

He said that around 7:30 p.m. he went upstairs to check on a thumping or falling sound on the second floor.

As he went upstairs, he said, he found the area in flames. Then, in the space of a few moments, the ceiling collapsed.

Albert found Pietela and carried him outside. Ellenville policemen had arrived at this time and assisted in taking out the other two men, identified as Joseph Ryan and Enal Budda.

Five Hour Battle

Responding to a call received at about 7:45 p. m., Ellenville fire companies, Pioneer Engine, Kimble Hose, and Scorsby Hook and Ladder Co., arrived at the scene and battled the blaze for about five hours while attempting to keep the flames from spreading to the adjoining building, a former Masonic Lodge, now owned by the urban renewal agency.

The Ellenville companies were later assisted by the Monticello and Wawarsing Fire Departments along with the departments from Napanoch and Cragmoor.

According to Ellenville Fire

Chief George Garrison, the second and third floors of the building were completely destroyed by fire, while the ground floor and store areas were damaged by water.

Pietela, whose age or occupation could not be immediately determined, had papers showing a Waukegan, Ill. address, but police said a check showed he had not lived there since 1958.

There was no official theory as to what caused the fire, according to fire and police authorities.

An investigation continues, however.

Fireman Hurt

A Napanoch fireman, Edward Hook, Sr., suffered a back injury when he fell off a 15 foot ladder.

Hook was taken to Ellenville Community Hospital where his condition is listed as "good."

Sol Albert declared that the building was slated to be signed over to the urban renewal agency sometime during the week-end.

Earlier, Pietela's condition had been listed by Ellenville doctor Henry Weiss as "very critical."

The doctor was reported to have been angry because he claimed the building has been without required fire escapes for many years.

Fire Chief Garrison said, however, that the building did have fire escapes.

Owner Albert said that some of the fire insurance on the building had been cancelled, because of the anticipated transfer, so he did not know how much, if any, insurance he was carrying.

Albert's former bakery and home at 143 Canal Street was burned out in a three-building blaze 12 years ago.

Locally, Kingston firefighters responded to a call received at 6:01 this morning and arrived at 629 Delaware Avenue to find smoke pouring from the windows of a second floor apartment rented by Mrs. Mary Cole and occupied by her son, John Cole, and granddaughter Annette.

There was nobody in the apartment at the time of the blaze, however, but the second floor front bedroom of the two-story frame building owned by Alvin Werbalowsky was in flames. Firemen from Central and Cornell stations, and volunteers from A. H. Wicks Engine and Rapid Hose Co. extinguished the blaze with water.

There was damage to the box mattress, bed frame, a chair and night table.

Firemen returned at 7:20 a. m.

Tactical Shift Seen in Talks

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

PARIS (AP) — The disclosure that Hanoi is sending one of its top officials to the U.S.-North Vietnamese peace talks has raised speculation that North Vietnam may be planning some tactical shift in its bargaining position.

A North Vietnamese spokesman said Friday that "one of our responsible people is coming to Paris."

He was identified later as Le Duc Tho, a member of the central committee, and poliburo of the Communist party of North Vietnam.

Tho is viewed by U.S. experts on North Vietnam as an important member of the ruling group in Hanoi.

To Resume Wednesday

The talks between U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman and Xuan Thuy of North Vietnam are in recess until Wednesday. Tho, who is probably traveling by way of Moscow as other members of the Hanoi delegation have done, presumably will be in Paris by that time.

Meanwhile Cyrus R. Vance, deputy to Harriman, is expected back here Sunday from Washington, where he reported to President Johnson on the talks. He left after the fifth meeting last Monday.

The questions about Tho's mission which interest U.S. officials here are whether he is bringing any new instructions to Thuy on new maneuvers by the North Vietnamese in the conference.

Friday's meeting, the sixth since the talks started three weeks ago, produced no movement toward agreement by either side.

U.S. spokesman William J. Jordan said, however, the meeting was marked by spontaneous discussion—slightly more informal talks and less speech-making. But the result was the same, he said, no action on escalating the war.

First Social Touch

This was the first time such a social touch had been injected.

In their formal encounter across the conference table they continued to exchange proposals and counterproposals on the issue of reducing the level of conflict in Vietnam.

Thuy said that if Harriman persisted in demanding some concession from North Vietnam for ending all attacks on that country they would eventually put out a joint communique in which the U.S. would pledge to stop its attacks and North Vietnam would pledge to abstain from attacking the United States.

Harriman retorted that the suggestion was "fantastic." But he said it could be rewritten to deal with "real issues."

out France was one of easing tension and enormous relief.

With gasoline pumps stocked again, tens of thousands of Frenchmen headed for the country in warm early summer weather for a three-day Pentecost holiday weekend.

Early today the government and Paris subway and bus unions signed a tentative wage and working hours agreement, still to be approved by rank and file strikers.

Transport Minister Jean Chamant said there was a possibility service might resume today.

Wage talks with railroad unions were resuming later today.

Throughout the country there was a steady drift back to the job. It was expected to become a rush Tuesday after the holiday weekend.

The Communist Party and union leaders who launched the most costly strike in French history two weeks ago appeared to have decided suddenly against a showdown test of strength against de Gaulle in the streets.

They began campaigning for the parliamentary election he called for June 23.

Possibly de Gaulle's tough speech to the nation Thursday, his threat to invoke dictatorial powers if necessary changed the minds of his foes.

Return to Normal

Suddenly gasoline became available at service stations that had almost run dry. Post Offices began handling money dealings. Banks and insurance companies were reopening. Peugeot, one of the big three French auto makers, announced it was reopening three plants early next week. Electric and gas workers settled their strike, trouble.

New wage and working condition negotiations were underway through the French economy which was in the grip of a national strike costing the nation about $1 billion a week.

However, de Gaulle was

Some Unions Adamant

It was too early to say the strike movement had collapsed. Some major unions held out. But the emphasis now appeared on the elections.

Waldeck Rochet, the Communist party leader, issued a statement making clear his forces were not aiming at a violent overthrow of the de Gaulle regime. The ballot box would do.

"We think the Gaullist power has served its time. It must be beaten in the forthcoming national elections in which the Communist party will participate," he said.

Rochet conferred with non-Communist leftwing leaders. The prospects grew of a joint leftwing campaign to throw out the Gaullist regime that has governed France for a decade.

On the president's side, the small but vital Independent Republican Party announced it would fight the election in cooperation with de Gaulle's party. The independents, led by Giscard d'Estaing, have provided the extra votes needed by the Gaullists who did not have a majority of votes in the parliament just dissolved by de Gaulle.

Riots In Rome

ROME (AP) — The streets of Rome were littered with charred automobiles, shattered glass and dried blood today in an echo of the chaos that has rocked France.

The disorder here began with student seizure of the University of Rome Friday and swelled into a major street riot in which demonstrators, mainly students, battled helmeted police with clubs and makeshift fire bombs.

The riot was confined to a small section near the French Embassy and was quelled in little more than an hour, but it touched off fears for more of the same as leftists in Rome followed the pattern of the rebellion in France.

The students who occupied the university put up a poster at the main entrance reading: "Rome like Paris."

Rep. Donald G. Brozman, R-Colo., a member of the academy's Board of Visitors, demanded an investigation to determine if negligence was involved and if Air Force sonic boom experts have been minimizing the damage to life and property caused in such flyovers.

Most of those injured were inside buildings. Members of the cadet wing, in formation on the parade field, were not hit by the glass.

Lasher who once received highest score on the civil service qualification examination, has been eligible for the job of Germantown postmaster since December 1966. "However, he is unable to assume the position because Sen. Kennedy is withholding his approval," Resnick explained.

Resnick also produced a list of 23 pending postmaster recommendations, none of which Kennedy has acted on. Nine of them, he said should have been acted upon some time ago.

Sonic Boom Shatters AF Academy Windows

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — Fifteen persons were cut by flying glass from about 300 shattered windows Friday when an F105 Thunderchief jet cracked the sound barrier in a low-level sweep over the Air Force Academy.

None of those hurt was hospitalized. One victim, however, required several stitches to close a neck wound.

Air Force officials were not able to estimate the damage immediately, but unofficial estimates ranged up to $50,000.

Not Identified

An academy spokesman said investigators were checking the plane's instruments—the first step in an effort to determine if a flying evaluation board would be called to bring charges against the pilot, who was not identified.

"The plane looked like it was coming straight for us," said Artus Smith, athletic equipment manager who was watching from a second-floor office in the cadet gymnasium.

"I don't know how he missed Vandenberg Hall. He came over it was reopening three plants valley. I yelled for a secretary to duck and I kicked the office door closed.

"When I looked up he had pulled straight up and glass was flying like hell," Smith said.

Windows were knocked out in two dormitories, the cadet gymnasium and the cadet dining hall.

The all-window south wall of the dining hall was blown out.

Four F105s from McConnell Air Force Base, Kan., had just completed a group flyover and were returning in single file.

The pilot of the first plane cut in his afterburners as he passed an estimated 50 feet over three-story Vandenberg Hall.

"Pilots who are involved in flybys are too concerned with the terrain and other aircraft to keep a close watch on the air speed gauge," the academy spokesman, who is also a pilot, explained. "There is a possibility that the gauge, like a car's speedometer, was not working properly and the pilot didn't know he was supersonic. That's what we're attempting to determine now."

Wants Investigation

Rep. Donald G. Broxmeyer, R-Colo., a member of the academy's Board of Visitors, demanded an investigation to determine if negligence was involved and if Air Force sonic boom experts have been minimizing the damage to life and property caused in such flyovers.

The flyover was the finale to a ceremony marking the presentation of a static F105 display, made from parts of 10 combat damaged planes, to the academy's 3,100 cadet wing.

Most of those injured were inside buildings. Members of the cadet wing, in formation on the parade field, were not hit by the glass.

Riots In Rome

ROME (AP) — The streets of Rome were littered with charred automobiles, shattered glass and dried blood today in an echo of the chaos that has rocked France.

The disorder here began with student seizure of the University of Rome Friday and swelled into a major street riot in which demonstrators, mainly students, battled helmeted police with clubs and makeshift fire bombs.

The riot was confined to a small section near the French Embassy and was quelled in little more than an hour, but it touched off fears for more of the same as leftists in Rome followed the pattern of the rebellion in France.

The students who occupied the university put up a poster at the main entrance reading: "Rome like Paris."

Resnick: Postmasters, Post-Mortems, Justice Pursuit

By LYNN MULVANEY

Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick, stepping out of a helicopter into the rain at Kingston Airport yesterday afternoon, exhibited a sun-shiny face, beaming with the confidence that he "would carry virtually every upstate county" in his campaign for the U. S. Senate nomination.

In an attempt to bolster his strength among metropolitan area voters, the Ellenville Democrat spent the early part of the day sky-hopping from one Borscht Belt hotel to another greeting as many vacationing New Yorkers as possible.

Interviewed at the airport, the congressman was candid in his opinion of his adversary Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's loss in the Oregon presidential primary. "People judged him out there and decided they just didn't like him" Resnick reasoned as though his own words were music to his ears.

Asked if he felt the outcome of next Tuesday's California primary would follow a similar pattern of victory for Sen. Eugene McCarthy, Resnick was more hesitant, explaining that RFK is likely to pick up the large block of Negro and Mexican votes in that state.

Reflecting happily on Hubert Humphrey's coup this week in grabbing 95 of 112 of Pennsylvania's uncommitted delegates, Resnick agreed the vice-president might repeat the maneuver before the June 4-RFK-McCarthy primary encounter, thereby again stealing some thunder.

Resnick said he would appear with Vice President Humphrey here in New York State next week when Humphrey speaks at the Monroe County Democratic dinner Thursday.

Was Underestimated

Regarding his own campaign, Resnick agreed that his primary opponent, Nassau County executive Eugene Nickerson, must have underestimated Resnick's support. The fact is evidenced in Nickerson's switch in tactics recently in which he has ceased to ignore Resnick in his speeches and has now begun attacking him instead of just concentrating his assault on the incumbent Republican Sen. Jacob K. Javits.

"He sees I'm getting support from all over," Resnick explained, saying his headquarters throughout the state now number 150.

Still adamant in his pursuit of justice in the Arnheiter case, still interested in seeking action on local postmaster appointments which he says Kennedy is holding up, Resnick's latest target is Kennedy himself and what the congressman terms "the wiretapping affair."

This week, on the floor of the House, Resnick called for a "hearing under oath" to have Kennedy disclose his role in his alleged involvement in the wiretapping of the late Dr. Martin Luther King. He did not refer to Kennedy by name at the time.

Resnick told The Freeman yesterday that he is writing the senator a letter making his request direct.

Regarding the Arnheiter case, in which the congressman seeks a congressional hearing for a Navy skipper dismissed from command of his ship, he said he has been gathering considerable support in Washington on his stand. He said that when he announces his progress Monday in gaining signatures backing him, "people will be surprised."

Today in Ellenville, the senatorial candidate is visiting with Nathan Raskin the postmaster there before he returns to hotel hopping.

The appointments of postmasters in New York State is another bone of contention as far as Resnick is concerned.

Yesterday he angrily accused Kennedy of "playing power politics with little people" by tampering with postmaster appointments in a small rural community in upstate New York.

"A disabled veteran with a wife and two children is being frozen out of the job that has been rightfully his for over a year by Sen. Kennedy," Resnick was referring to Louis Lasher of Germantown, Columbia County, one of his constituents.

Highest Score

Lasher who once received highest score on the civil service qualification examination, has been eligible for the job of Germantown postmaster since December 1966. "However, he is unable to assume the position because Sen. Kennedy is withholding his approval," Resnick explained.

He indicated that he is asking Postmaster General William McMillan to remove the present acting postmaster, Clyde Denegar "who is exercising 'squat' rights on another man's job," and to install Lasher in his place.

Resnick said that Denegar has stated publicly that New York State Democratic Committee Chairman John Burns, an ardent Kennedy supporter, had promised him the job.

Resnick also produced a list of 23 pending postmaster recommendations, none of which Kennedy has acted on. Nine of them, he said should have been acted upon some time ago.

Included are: Accord, Joseph Barr; Glasco, Joyce Brazier; Rifton, Lewis McMahon; Shandaken, Mason Gossoo; West Camp, Robert Sewall; Chelsea, Michael Turco; Holmes, Joseph White; Krumville, Lulu Jones; Gallupville, Nancy Puro; Lebanon Springs, Bridget Stouter; Millbrook, Henry Dicker; Pawling, Woodrow Devine; Schoharie, Marvin Funk; Spencer-town, Virginia Williams; Was-saic, Ralph Vinchiarello; Walker Valley, George Ellison. Also recommendations in Ashland, Cornwallville, Hyde Park, Sloansville and Stanfordville.

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODIE ISHMAEL

The Rev. Francis Goh has come halfway around the world from a variety of religious backgrounds to give a new dimension, as associate minister, to the Methodist Church in Mamaroneck, N.Y. Born in Singapore of Chinese parents, his father was a Diest, his paternal grandmother a staunch Buddhist, and his mother and maternal grandmother devout Catholics. As a boy he went to the Buddhist Temple with one grandmother and to the Catholic church with the other.

His education was similarly varied. First he went to a Presbyterian school in Singapore, then to a Catholic school in Penang, neither of which filled his needs. In a Methodist boys' school he found what he wanted.

After high school he decided to be a Methodist minister. Following one year of college in Singapore he came to West Virginia Wesleyan on a full scholarship and finished college in two and a half years. He went to Duke Divinity School on a full scholarship and was ordained in 1965.

The Rev. Goh's faith typifies the best of the East and the West. He says, "Faith comes partly through knowledge and enlightenment, and love and service are the fruits of one's faith." Recently married to an American girl of Danish background who is a social worker, he has broken every tradition of his family. But he is convinced that "the interchange and amalgamation of cultures and ideas will do much to bring world peace."

Rejected Codes Lead To Moral Breakdown

By LOUIS CASSELS

United Press International "The moral crisis of our time consists primarily not in the widespread violation of accepted moral standards—when has any age been free of that?—but in the repudiation of those very moral standards themselves."

Herberg, graduate professor of philosophy and culture at Drew University in New Jersey, writes in the current issue of "The Intercollegiate Review" that "the very notion of morality or moral code seems to be losing its meaning for increasing numbers of men and women in our society."

sexual activity" among the younger generation today, "the real moral problem is provided not by the girl who goes along, but by the girl who shrugs her shoulders and says: 'Well, so what? What's so bad about sleeping around?'"

Involves Whole Structure "The same 'so what?' attitude is encountered in older age groups, too, and it applies not only to sexual behavior but also to lying, cheating, defrauding and various other forms of dishonesty."

Church Women to Hear Of 10th Ward Program

The next meeting of the Kingston Council of Church Women United will be held at the Riverview Baptist Church June 3 at 7:30 p. m.

The raised by the foodless food sale. Mrs. Nar Slutsky has been invited to speak briefly to the delegates at this meeting. She will present a picture of the work she has been supervising with children of the 10th ward.

"It is here that we find a breakdown in morality in a radical sense, in a sense almost without precedent in our Western history," says Herberg.

"To violate moral standards while at the same time acknowledging their authority is one thing; to lose all sense of the moral claim, to repudiate all moral authority and every moral standard as such, is something far more serious."

He sharply disagrees with those Protestant theologians who hold that contemporary society is evolving a "new morality" based on the application of love for others to each concrete situation rather than on rules and regulations.

Pleasure Kick "This is dew-eyed optimism, in Herberg's view. A realistic look at contemporary values shows that what's actually happening is a rejection of all moral restraints 'in favor of a way of life governed by a self-indulgent quest for pleasure and fun."

Adv for Thurs pms May 30 "Everything is justified by the 'kicks' you get out of it. If our time has retained from times past some sense of binding obligation in the conduct of life, it is the obligation to 'have fun.' To 'have a good time' is, with many of our modern-minded people, as stern an obligation as serving God was to an old-time Calvinist."

How did we drift into this state? Herberg believes the long slide into moral anarchy began more than a century ago when the makers of intellectual fashion turned away from the ancient Hebrew and Greek concept of truth as "something anchored in objective and transcendental reality."

No Absolute, No God "The modern vogue of regarding truth as relative and conditional, rather than absolute and eternal, reached its logical conclusion in the proclamation that 'God is dead.'"

And a world without God is bound to become a world without moral standards, Herberg asserts.

"No human ethic is possible that is not itself grounded in a higher law and a higher reality beyond human manipulation or control. For it is the humanity of man that is at stake. And the humanity of man—our wisdom and our suffering ought to have taught us—is ultimately grounded in that which is above and beyond man. To realize this profound truth is to realize the full depth and measure of the moral crisis of our time."

Archbishop to Preach At Episcopal Service

Archbishop Terence J. Cooke will become the first Roman Catholic prelate to preach at the Cathedral Church of St. John the Divine on Pentecost Sunday, June 2, at 4 p. m. Called an "ecumenical witness" invoking the aid of the Holy Spirit in our urban crisis, the service is sponsored by the whole Christian community in New York.

Participants will include Mayor John V. Lindsay; the Reverend M. L. Wilson, Convent Avenue Baptist Church; the Reverend Simpson V. Turner, Mt. Carmel Baptist Church, Brooklyn; the Reverend Lawrence L. Durgin, Broadway United Church of Christ; the Reverend William James, Metropolitan Community Methodist Church; and the Right Reverend Horace W. B. Donegan, Episcopal Bishop of New York. The procession will include dignitaries from all communions, as well as political and community leaders of New York City.

Western Union Strike Averted

A nationwide strike against Western Union that was to start early today was averted at the 11th hour by a tentative agreement on a new contract.

The Kingston office of Western Union and others in the vicinity had planned to join in the strike which had been set for 12:01 a. m. EDT, one minute after expiration of the old contract.

The accord reached between Western Union and the Commercial Telegraphers Union was called "a very good settlement" by E. L. Hageman, CTU president.

The three-year agreement would boost wages of all Western Union employees except walking, bicycle and motorized messengers by five per cent immediately, another five per cent in June 1969 and six per cent in 1970. Messengers, whose pay recently went up would receive a raise of six cents an hour for the three-year period.

Joe Promises To Open Offices If Elected

Democratic senate candidate Joseph Y. Resnick today pledged to open senatorial offices through the State of New York if elected in November to the U.S. Senate.

"I promise that when in office," said Congressman Resnick, "I will make certain that every citizen of this state will be within 100 or 150 miles of one of my senatorial offices."

"These offices will be communications and service centers for the citizens of the state. They will not only offer information for individuals, but also for communities as well."

"Through these centers, local communities will be able to learn what Federal programs are available to assist them," said Resnick.

"At the moment, New Yorkers outside of New York City proper have only two such senatorial offices — one in Buffalo for Sen. Robert Kennedy and one in Syracuse for Sen. Jacob Javits."

"These two Senators of ours are not doing enough for all the citizens of this state."

"I propose to do more as U.S. senator because I'm running for the people of this state, and I don't look at the office just as a stepping-stone to something else."

Gronouski Will Head HHH Drive

DETROIT (UPI)—John A. Gronouski, who resigned last week as ambassador to Poland, will head the campaign activities in behalf of Vice President Hubert Humphrey today and Sunday at the Michigan state Democratic Convention.

Gronouski, postmaster general until appointed ambassador, Friday joined the campaign staff of the United Democrats for Humphrey, backing the vice president's bid for the presidency.

Middle School Principal Philip Buonfiglio will speak on the many facets of the Middle School including program, facilities and equipment. Assistant Middle School Principal Peter Zegel will assist in the presentation. The Middle School will open in September of this year.

The following slate of 1968-69 P-TA officers will be presented: chairman, Mrs. Barbara Barry; vice chairman, Mrs. Lola Disch; secretary, Mrs. Carolyn Van Newkirk; treasurer, Mrs. Evelyn Zaharchuk. The nominating committee was composed of Mrs. Kathy Ludlow and Mrs. Jane Countryman.

Hqs. for Bell To Open Monday In Woodstock

Milton Houst, chairman and Roger E. Cashdollar, coordinator of the Republicans for Bell Committee in the Town of Woodstock announced today that the headquarters will open Monday, June 3 at 7:30 p.m. in the Bradley Meadows Shopping Center. Refreshments will be served.

In making the joint announcement, Houst and Cashdollar said, "all area residents are cordially invited to attend and talk with Clark and his wife."

Prof. Jay Bloom of the State University at New Paltz addressed the regular meeting of the Zephaniah Lodge of B'nai B'rith held this week.

Prof. Bloom, Hiller councilor at New Paltz, spoke on "Situations Which Challenge the Students."

He explained the purpose of the Hiller chapter—that of arranging cultural, religious, educational and social programs for Jewish students. He elaborated on problems faced by students involved in recent uprisings.

A panel of three New Paltz students, Faith Blatberg, president of the college Hiller chapter, Ann Weiss, vice president and Vic Cornice, treasurer, explained challenges they found at college.

Program arrangements were made by Dr. Bernard Cohen, Hiller chairman of B'nai B'rith. During the business session, at which Gilbert Adin, vice president presided, the membership voted to award a $50 savings bond to a Kingston High School senior who has displayed outstanding citizenship qualities. The award will be presented by Ben Susskind to a student selected by the faculty.

Adin advised that a June meeting of the organization will be held at a date to be announced.

Exploring Ocean Floor As Sub Search Continues

BY STAN DARDEN

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The Navy has flown two deep submersibles and an advanced diving system to the Azores to explore the shallow waters near the last reported position of the missing nuclear submarine Scorpion.

The deep submersibles, Link-Perry and Deep-Diver, and the advanced diving system, Aids Mark 4, were sent Friday to survey the ocean bottom south of the Azores where the Scorpion last radioed her position May 21.

All three can explore the ocean floor to a depth of more than 1,000 feet. The Scorpion and her crew of 99 were due to arrive at her home port here Monday at 1 p.m. and was declared missing on Wednesday.

Meanwhile, destroyers and submarines are sweeping eastward along the 2,400-mile projected course of Scorpion from Norfolk to the Azores. The Navy said the armada is expected to reach the Azores June 7.

While the armada searches a 15-mile-wide track, three patrol planes are conducting visual observation flights along a 100-mile-wide track on the same course.

The focal point of the search is now around the Cruiser Banks, with depths as shallow as 100 feet, and the Irving Banks, 360 miles south of the Azores. The Scorpion's projected course would have taken it within 30 miles of these "sea mounds," or underwater ridges.

The nuclear submarine Gato was scheduled to arrive today in the area of the sea mounds to rendezvous with the deep submersibles.

Vice Adm. Arnold F. Schade, commander of the rescue force, told newsmen Friday that the area off the Azores was the "second logical" spot to search since no clues to the Scorpion's whereabouts had turned up in the ocean approaches to Norfolk.

Asked by a newsmen if the Navy had ruled out the possibility that the Scorpion was on the continental shelf, Schade replied: "Yes, I think that we can say that."

The admiral also conceded that "with each passing hour the situation is certainly grimmer."

Navy divers determined Friday that an underwater hulk located by sonar in 180 feet of water 70 miles off Cape Henry, Va., was a World War II submarine, possibly German. The hulk had a gun mount in front of its conning tower—something the Scorpion lacked.

Schade said the Navy, Coast Guard and the Federal Communications Commission are investigating a mysterious voice broadcast heard Wednesday by a Navy patrol aircraft and six surface ships. The broadcast used the Navy's code name for the Scorpion, Brandywine.

The admiral said at least eight pleasure boats or fishing vessels using the name Brandywine were in that area of the Atlantic. He said it was possible that anyone might have made the broadcast since the submarine search and rescue frequency is near the ship-to-shore frequency.

The admiral also conceded that "with each passing hour the situation is certainly grimmer."

Savings Bond Holders To Get Higher Interest

BY JOSEPH R. COYNE

WASHINGTON (AP)—Treasury officials look to the higher interest rate on U.S. savings bonds to put the program back on a profitable track for the government.

President Johnson ordered the hike in interest, effective today. Since December, Americans have cashed in more Series E and H savings bonds than they bought except for February when the pendulum swung only slightly the other way.

The bonds have been paying 4.5 per cent interest and Treasury officials hope the 4.25 per cent rate—the maximum allowed under law on Series E and H bonds—will be enough to keep the program in the black.

Interest on Freedom Shares, higher-interest bonds which went on sale for the first time about one year ago, was increased to 5 per cent from the previous 4.74 per cent under the President's action taken Friday at the Texas White House.

Officials have been disappointed with the performance of the Freedom Share, a program to raise money for the Vietnam war.

There had been hopes originally of raising as much as $1 billion a year once the program caught on. But the first year of operation produced only $160 million in new revenues and over the first four months of this year purchases had leveled off at about $20 million a month.

Freedom Shares, which can't be cashed in for one year after purchase, still must be bought in combination with Series E bonds. But it's no longer necessary to buy them through the payroll savings or bond-a-month plans.

Any share can now sell a Freedom Share over the counter with a Series E bond.

In combination Series E bonds and Freedom Shares pay 4.56 per cent under the new rates if held to maturity—still 7 years for E bonds and 4½ years for Freedom Shares.

Although the higher interest rate went into effect today, it will be six months before its impact will be felt. The Treasury won't actually pay the higher premium until Dec. 1. That's because interest on savings bonds is figured in six-month periods and the first six months won't expire until Nov. 30. Any bonds cashed in before that time will draw interest at the old rates.

Clues Being Sought To Solve Trunk Case

NEW YORK (AP) — Police combed hippie haunts in the East Village and Greenwich Village in hopes of turning up clues in the death of 17-year-old Nancy Perri, whose body was found in a trunk washed up on Staten Island.

An initial autopsy Friday failed to establish cause of death. Her body was found by a fisherman on Memorial Day.

Chief Medical Examiner Milton Helsen said a final determination of how she died was not expected until next week, adding: "So far as we can determine, there is no evidence of gross violence."

Blonde, attractive Nancy, known as "mod" and "a swinger" since she was 14, lived off and on with her mother, Mrs. Diane Perri, on Manhattan's Upper East Side. Mrs. Perri is a cashier in a midtown hotel.

Police learned that Nancy dropped out of school when she was 16 and that occasionally she worked as a hatcheck girl in discotheques and swinging bars.

Leo Hauser, 17, a high school senior with shoulder-length hair who lives in the luxury apartment building of Mrs. Perri, said he had known Nancy for four years.

Hauser said he would not describe Nancy as a hippie "because hippies have a philosophy and she had no philosophy."

He added that "mod" would be a more accurate description. Hauser said Nancy had been going to and from Florida for the past seven or eight months, and had told him she was happy with a rock singer in a Miami discotheque known as "Angel."

"I don't know why she came back if she was so happy," Hauser said.

Peter Simins, 23, a freelance photographer, said Friday: "Her life was full. She made all the scenes. I photographed her many times. Nancy had problems and was constantly trying to escape them. She wanted to be happy."

Simins described Nancy's friends as rich kids with unlimited charge accounts. They'd lend or give Nancy money, let her charge some clothes. Nancy liked to dress.

Police said Nancy's parents separated when she was 4 years old. The father has remarried.

Liddy Slates Red Hook Visit

The people of Red Hook will have an opportunity to meet G. Gordon Liddy, Republican candidate for Congress from the 28th District next Tuesday.

Liddy will be welcomed to the community at a coffee given in his honor at the home of Mrs. John Smithers, Rt. 199, at 10 a.m. Twenty-five persons have been invited.

From noon until 1:30 Liddy will guest speaker at the Rotary luncheon at Matty's Restaurant, Rt. 9, Red Hook.

Between 1:30 and 4 p.m. he will visit schools, recreation park and village shops and between 4 and 5 he will meet the people of the village and a local teen band, "The Bred."

After 5 Liddy will visit the library and fire station and will attempt to meet with the mayor, Elroy Rand.

In the evening a dinner will be held at Matty's Restaurant. Anyone interested may call for reservations.

The day's final event will be a coffee given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schreiber, Rt. 199, at 8 p.m. Forty people have been invited.

Area Heart Representatives At State Meet

Deweese W. DeWitt, chairman of the Board of Directors, Kingston and Dr. John A. Vossburgh, president, Catskill, represented the Mid-Hudson Heart Association, Inc. at the annual meeting and scientific session of the New York State Heart Assembly in Syracuse.

The meeting, held at the Randolph House, began with panel sessions to which the Mid-Hudson Heart Association sent appointed delegates. Comprehensive Health Planning was attended by Mrs. Harry Warner, Hudson, Board Members and Miss Katherine Bower, Kingston, Executive Director; Implementation of the American Heart Association Report on Structure, attended by DeWitt; and Heart Volunteers On A Year Round Basis, attended by Mrs. Robert Shumate, Kingston, assistant to the executive director.

All delegates and staff participated in the annual business meeting and Heart Assembly Dinner, Dr. Willard H. Willis, Utica, presiding. Dr. David Gerbarg, board member, Kingston, attended the Scientific Session on updating Drug Therapy in Heart Disease, and all other delegates were part of the Heart Fund Session.

Awards were presented at the dinner, and the guest speaker, Rome A. Betts, executive director, American Heart Association, said his farewells after 20 years of faithful service to Heart.

Memorial
In sad and loving memory of P.F.C. John J. Post who died in Maine, June 1, 1945. It only takes a little space. To write how much we miss you, But it will take the rest of our lives.

To forget the day we lost you. SISTER AND BROTHER

Memorial
In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather, George J. Deyo Sr., who passed away 3 years ago today, June 1, 1965. Gone is the face we loved so dear, Silent the voice we loved to hear, But there is a link death cannot sever: Love and remembrance last forever.

CHILDREN and GRANDCHILDREN
Memorial
In sad and loving memory of my husband, George J. Deyo Sr., who passed away 3 years ago today, June 1, 1965. Though you went first and I remain to walk the road alone, I live in memories garden, dear with happy days we've known. In spring I wait for roses, when faded, the lilacs blue, In early fall when brown leaves fall; I'll catch a glimpse of you. Though you went first and I remain, for battles to be fought, Each thing you touched along the way became a hallowed spot.

I hear your voice, I see your smile, tho blindly I may grope. The memory of your helping hand still buoy me on with hope. Though you went first and I remain, one thing I'd have you do, Walk slowly down that long, long path, someday I'll follow you. I want to know each step you take, so I may take the same. For someday down the lonely road, you'll hear me call your name.

SADLY MISSED BY YOUR WIFE.

Western Union Strike Averted

A nationwide strike against Western Union that was to start early today was averted at the 11th hour by a tentative agreement on a new contract.

The Kingston office of Western Union and others in the vicinity had planned to join in the strike which had been set for 12:01 a. m. EDT, one minute after expiration of the old contract.

The accord reached between Western Union and the Commercial Telegraphers Union was called "a very good settlement" by E. L. Hageman, CTU president.

The three-year agreement would boost wages of all Western Union employees except walking, bicycle and motorized messengers by five per cent immediately, another five per cent in June 1969 and six per cent in 1970. Messengers, whose pay recently went up would receive a raise of six cents an hour for the three-year period.

Joe Promises To Open Offices If Elected

Democrat senate candidate Joseph Y. Resnick today pledged to open senatorial district offices through the State of New York if elected in November to the U.S. Senate.

"I promise that when in office," said Congressman Resnick, "I will make certain that every citizen of this state will be within 100 or 150 miles of one of my senatorial offices."

"These offices will be communications and service centers for the citizens of the state. They will not only offer information for individuals, but also for communities as well."

"Through these centers, local communities will be able to learn what Federal programs are available to assist them," said Resnick.

"At the moment, New Yorkers outside of New York City proper have only two such senatorial offices — one in Buffalo for Sen. Robert Kennedy and one in Syracuse for Sen. Jacob Javits."

"These two Senators of ours are not doing enough for all the citizens of this state."

"I propose to do more as U.S. senator because I'm running for the people of this state, and I don't look at the office just as a stepping-stone to something else."

Gronouski Will Head HHH Drive

DETROIT (UPI)—John A. Gronouski, who resigned last week as ambassador to Poland, will head the campaign activities in behalf of Vice President Hubert Humphrey today and Sunday at the Michigan state Democratic Convention.

Gronouski, postmaster general until appointed ambassador, Friday joined the campaign staff of the United Democrats for Humphrey, backing the vice president's bid for the presidency.

B'nai B'rith Hears Speaker

Prof. Bloom, Hillel counselor at New Paltz, spoke on "Situations Which Challenge the Students."

He explained the purpose of the Hillel chapter—that of arranging cultural, religious, educational and social programs for Jewish students. He elaborated on problems faced by students involved in recent uprisings.

A panel of three New Paltz students, Faith Blatberg, president of the college Hillel chapter, Ann Weiss, vice president and Vic Cornice, treasurer, explained challenges they found at college.

Program arrangements were made by Dr. Bernard Cohen, Hillel chairman of B'nai B'rith. During the business session, at which Gilbert Adin, vice president presided, the membership voted to award a $50 savings bond to a Kingston High School senior who has displayed outstanding citizenship qualities. The award will be presented by Ben Susskind to a student selected by the faculty.

Adin advised that a June meeting of the organization will be held at a date to be announced.

Exploring Ocean Floor As Sub Search Continues

BY STAN DARDEN

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The Navy has flown two deep submersibles and an advanced diving system to the Azores to explore the shallow waters near the last reported position of the missing nuclear submarine Scorpion.

The deep submersibles, Link-Perry and Deep-Diver, and the advanced diving system, Adm. Mark 4, were sent Friday to survey the ocean bottom south of the Azores where the Scorpion last radioed her position May 21.

All three can explore the ocean floor to a depth of more than 1,000 feet. The Scorpion and her crew of 99 were due to arrive at her home port here Monday at 1 p.m. and was declared missing on Wednesday.

Meanwhile, destroyers and submarines are sweeping eastward along the 2,400-mile projected course of Scorpion from Norfolk to the Azores. The Navy said the armada is expected to reach the Azores June 7.

While the armada searches a 15-mile-wide track, three patterns of search planes are conducting visual observation flights along a 100-mile-wide track on the same course.

The focal point of the search is now around the Cruiser Banks, with depths as shallow as 100 feet, and the Irving Banks, 360 miles south of the Azores. The Scorpion's projected course would have taken it within 30 miles of these "sea mounds," or underwater ridges.

The nuclear submarine Gato was scheduled to arrive today in the area of the sea mounds to rendezvous with the deep submersibles.

Vice Adm. Arnold F. Schade, commander of the rescue force, told newsmen Friday that the area off the Azores was the "second logical" spot to search since no clues to the Scorpion's whereabouts had turned up in the ocean approaches to Norfolk.

Asked by a newsmen if the Navy had ruled out the possibility that the Scorpion was on the continental shelf, Schade replied: "Yes, I think that we can say that."

The admiral also conceded that "with each passing hour the situation is certainly grimmer."

Navy divers determined Friday that an underwater hulk located by sonar in 180 feet of water 70 miles off Cape Henry, Va., was a World War II submarine, possibly German. The hulk had a gun mount in front of its conning tower—something the Scorpion lacked.

Schade said the Navy, Coast Guard and the Federal Communications Commission are investigating a mysterious voice broadcast heard Wednesday by a Navy patrol aircraft and six surface ships. The broadcast used the Navy's code name for the Scorpion, Brandywine.

The admiral said at least eight pleasure boats or fishing vessels using the name Brandywine were in that area of the Atlantic. He said it was possible that anyone might have made the broadcast since the submarine search and rescue frequency is near the ship-to-shore frequency.

A lawyer and former FBI supervisor in Washington, D.C., Liddy is assistant district attorney of Dutchess County.

Area Heart Representatives At State Meet

Deweese W. DeWitt, chairman of the Board of Directors, Kingston and Dr. John A. Vosburgh, president, Catskill, represented the Mid-Hudson Heart Association, Inc. at the annual meeting and scientific session of the New York State Heart Assembly in Syracuse.

The meeting, held at the Randolph House, began with panel sessions to which the Mid-Hudson Heart Association sent appointed delegates. Comprehensive Health Planning was attended by Mrs. Harry Warner, Hudson and Mrs. Elias Lynk, Livingston, Board Members and Miss Katherine Bower, Kingston, Executive Director; Implementation of the American Heart Association Report on Structure, attended by DeWitt; and Heart Volunteers On A Year Round Basis, attended by Mrs. Robert Shumate, Kingston, assistant to the executive director.

All delegates and staff participated in the annual business meeting and Heart Assembly Dinner, Dr. Willard H. Willis, Utica, presiding. Dr. David Gerbarg, board member, Kingston, attended the Scientific Session on updating Drug Therapy in Heart Disease, and all other delegates were part of the Heart Fund Session.

Awards were presented at the dinner, and the guest speaker, Rome A. Betts, executive director, American Heart Association, said his farewells after 20 years of faithful service to Heart.

Dr. Fry Quits Lutheran Post, 'Gravely Ill'

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Rev. Dr. Franklin Clark Fry, president of the Lutheran Church in America, resigned his post Friday because he is "gravely ill."

In a statement read by the Rev. Dr. Malvin H. Lundeen, executive secretary of the church, Fry said his office "demands a full and unimpaired vitality of a man in good health and...my own prospects are not sanguine."

Fry, 67, entered New Rochelle Hospital May 22 and dictated his brief statement to his son Thursday. The nature of his illness was not revealed.

Lundeen said the new president would be elected by the 695 delegates to the church convention to be held in Atlanta, Ga., June 19-27.

Memorial
In sad and loving memory of P.F.C. John J. Post who died in Maine, June 1, 1945. It only takes a little space. To write how much we miss you. But it will take the rest of our lives. To forget the day we lost you. SISTER AND BROTHER

Memorial
In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather, George J. Deyo Sr., who passed away 3 years ago today, June 1, 1965. Gone is the face we loved so dear. Silent the voice we loved to hear. But there is a link death cannot sever; Love and remembrance last forever.

CHILDREN and GRANDCHILDREN Memorial
In sad and loving memory of my husband, George J. Deyo Sr., who passed away 3 years ago today June 1, 1965. Though you went first and I remain to walk the road alone, I live in memories garden, dear with happy days we're known. In spring I wait for roses, when faded, the lilacs blue. In early fall when brown leaves fall; I'll catch a glimpse of you. Though you went first and I remain, for battles to be fought. Each thing you touched along the way became a hallowed spot. I hear your voice, I see your smile, the blindly I may grope. The memory of your helping hand still buoy me on with hope. Though you went first and I remain, one thing I'd have you do. Walk slowly down that long, long path, someday I'll follow you. I want to know each step you take, so I may take the same. For someday down the lonely road, you'll hear me call your name.

SADLY MISSED BY YOUR WIFE.

Election Barometer

One of the proven barometers of recent elections has been this: Ask what the leading issues of the coming election will be, then which political party you think can do a better job of handling that particular question. Over the last two decades, the answers to those questions have provided a sensitive forecast of voting behavior in each of the national elections so tested by the Gallup poll.

For instance, in 1966 the top problems were the war in Vietnam, racial strife and the high cost of living, the same as today. The poll gave the Democrats a 53 to 47 edge over the Republicans. The congressional elections that fall were split 52 to 48 in favor of the Democrats.

Before the Presidential election of 1964, the Democrats had a lead of 63 to 37 per cent. President Johnson won over Senator Barry Goldwater by a 61 to 39 per cent margin.

In 1962, the barometer worked again, when the poll showed the Democrats ahead by 58 to 42 and they won the Congressional election by the same decisive margin.

However, in 1960, the poll was very close. It showed almost identical results, which forecast the hairbreadth election of John F. Kennedy over Richard M. Nixon. Again now, the poll shows the split between the parties 51 per cent Republicans to 49 per cent Democrats, forecasting another very close election this fall. This poll is on issues and parties, not individuals, mind you. What a given candidate on each party ticket will do to change this showing remains to be seen.

As of now, however, the barometer is rising with the Republicans. They can expect to win with any of their candidates — Nixon, Rockefeller or Reagan. The Democrats will have to work somewhat harder to overcome their fallback. They will need to determine which one of their candidates can best overcome the difference — Humphrey, Kennedy or McCarthy. Once the candidates are chosen, the reading may alter.

Johnson Tips His Hand

"If I could have one hope today, it would be this: That whoever may be President, wherever he may reside, whatever party he belongs to, he will look at the social record of the past five years and say 'We have just begun.'"

President Johnson thus made social progress in the United States decisive in his choice of a successor. Speaking to the International Ladies Garment Workers convention in Atlantic City, he went further and added, "I hope our next President will have just begun and will continue to build and heal and to unite the greatest nation in the world."

In so saying, Johnson used almost identical language with that which Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and his supporters are using, that he above all candidates for the Presidency can unite and heal this country. Johnson thus left no doubt about his own choice.

Times have changed and there are "new politics and participatory democracy," Johnson said, alluding to some of the things that the two Senate candidates for the Democratic nomination—Robert F. Kennedy and Eugene J. McCarthy—are pressing. But he added, "The old-time religion is good enough for me, and the old-time liberalism is good enough for me."

If any question remained about his meaning, Johnson quoted some writers who have compared his methods and those of Kennedy and McCarthy, and delivered the final coup: "These accomplishments may not have been achieved with charisma or style, but they were done."

He may speak more plainly before the Democratic national convention but Johnson has made clear his preference and his labor audience knows it.

Montclair, a well-to-do New Jersey suburb of New York, has a Negro Mayor the first time in its 100-year history. Its 43,000 residents, one fourth Negro, did not elect him. He received the largest vote for the town commission. His four all white colleagues elected him their chairman or Mayor. It is no longer unique for a Negro to head a city government in this country.

Unless Congress raises taxes within the next few weeks, look for another interest rate rise, the American Bankers Association was told. Both Federal Reserve and Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation officials joined in fixing July 1 as a possible date for the increase in interest rates if Congress does not raise taxes. Inflation waits for no man.

To release surplus labor to regions where there is a labor shortage, a Soviet mathematician urges a tax to discourage factories from overstaffing their personnel rolls. Apparently, Soviet factory managers store surplus labor against a time when they are needed, a very wasteful practice which private enterprise would discard as unprofitable.

Spare the Rod

Inflation Builds Up, Nation Faces Crisis

WASHINGTON — The inflation crisis is building up. The administration is issuing sharp warnings, and so is the head of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. The emphasis being placed on the need for a tax increase and a cut in the budget is unprecedented. But Congress doesn't seem to be too anxious, just before an election campaign, to vote a raise in taxes. The administration isn't enthusiastic about cutting expenses.

The open letter to business issued on Tuesday by Winton M. Blount, president of the Chamber of Commerce, says in part:

"This nation faces a financial crisis. Essentially, this crisis has arisen because of enormous deficit spending by the government. Under present circumstances, the government may spend at least 24 billion dollars more in the fiscal year 1969 than it collects in taxes. The estimated deficit for the current fiscal year (1968) is 23 billion dollars."

"Deficit spending of this magnitude does irreparable harm. It breeds intolerable inflation. . . It compels abnormally high interest rates. It reduces the competitiveness of American products, making our balance of payments all the more critical."

Coincidentally, the administration itself makes public a memorandum from Arthur M. Okun, chairman of the President's Council of Economic advisers, which draws attention to a report from the Bureau of Labor Statistics concerning wage and price developments during the first quarter of this year. The memorandum says:

"Reflecting the widespread strength of demand and rising costs, virtually all commodity and service groups registered sharp advances in prices. . . ."

"The rate of increase in prices of manufactured goods more than doubled, reflecting rising costs and strong demand. . . ."

"Both wage rates and hourly compensation rose more rapidly in the first quarter than at any time in more than a decade. . . . The outlook is for even higher settlements this quarter, as evidenced by the telephone settlement and recent construction bargaining. . . ."

"Profits gained in the first quarter despite the higher labor costs. . . ."

"Wage and profit behavior once again demonstrated the self-defeating nature of inflation. . . . Fiscal restraint is a must to moderate demand and to achieve a slowdown in price increases. Until a tax increase is enacted, there will be growing strains on prices, costs, imports, and financial markets at home and abroad."

But the chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers says that, even with action on the tax bill, "the route back to price stability will be long and difficult."

Similar observations have been made for the last year and a half. The pressure for some kind of deflationary measure, such as an increase in taxes, has been steadily growing. Nobody likes a tax increase—least of all the politicians—but the economists say it is necessary to curb inflation or, at the minimum, to hold down the rate of acceleration.

An economic decline would, of course, affect the general public. It would have effects abroad, too. Once a deflation gets going, it can move faster than the proponents of the tax increase ever thought it would. But, as has happened so often in the past, the remedies that should be applied are better seen in retrospect—after the climax has come.

The President's Council of Economic Advisers sums up the current situation this way: "The over-all economic environment of booming demand is the main explanation for the acceleration of price and cost increases."

As long as a boom seems to be in progress, it is hard to convince members of Congress that they should enact an increase in taxes. Their excuse, of course, is that the administration has failed to come up with a substantial cut in expenditures. As a matter of fact, a curtailment of several billions in government spending would tend to slow down the boom in many areas.

It is the same old story—the government waits until the economic conditions of the country really turn bad before it begins to apply corrective measures.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

The most difficult thing for a man to sell is himself. Some can sell machinery, or household goods, or cars. In this they must sell a bit of themselves to the customer, or he will try elsewhere.

But when a man has nothing to offer except his character, his integrity, his intellect, I stand in his presence with my hat over my heart.

John Francis Monahan did it and he did it big. If you had seen him 25 years ago among a million kids, you'd have said: "That one is going to be a bum."

It would have constituted an intelligent assessment. The kid was a wise guy. There were reasons, I guess. John Monahan, born in Evanston, Ill., of Warren L. Monahan, an executive of a small company selling olive oil, olives and salad dressings, found life a bit easy. He had spending money. Clothes. A bicycle.

One night when John was little, his father drove the car over a railroad crossing. A train killed him. Life became harsh. It became easier to do a buddy out of a quarter than to earn one. Three years later, John's mother died suddenly. The world was becoming too tough to bear, so John said the hell with it. Nothing was permanent, including love.

He went to live with two older sisters—Betty and Pat—but they lacked control. They were single, and a growing boy is a unique mystery. They sent him to study with the Benedictine Sisters at St. Edmund's Hall in Nauvoo, Ill. John Monahan became a drop out before anyone knew what the word meant. He went back to Betty's house, an old stucco place at 1500 Sherwin Avenue, Chicago.

She fed his body, but his mind was racing downhill at top speed. He admired the neighborhood toughs who could fight. He joined the no-work, no-school crowd. Once, John descended to be a lieguard at Tuohy Avenue on Lake Michigan. It gave him a chance to show off his big skinny frame, his jet hair and a handsome grin.

He went off to war young. The 95th Division of Ohio didn't need Monahan, and he never did better than buck private. His credo was Liberty, Money, Girls. When he got out in 1946, he and some buddies bought an old YP navy boat and set off down the Mississippi for Acapulco and a life of ease.

In Havana, a crewman was killed by a woman and John Francis Monahan learned, late, that nobody owed him a living and no one cared. He was 21 years old when he discovered a thing called education. He went to Miami and, although he had only 18 months of high school, took the entrance examinations at the University of Miami and passed.

His monumental mind told him that the best life would be as a diplomat in South America. So he majored in history, Spanish and good manners. To pay his way, he took an ugly job: orderly in the Veterans Hospital in Coral Gables. He couldn't even mooch a hamburger; it had to be earned.

In five years he had his Bachelor of Arts and he drove a Model A Ford to Washington. The politicians never heard of him. He drove back to Betty and sold the car for

$65. The diplomat took a job at the Edgewater Beach Hotel as room clerk. William M. Dewey, the owner, said: "John, if you will be the best in whatever you propose to be, people will stuff money in your pocket."

He ran an elevator. He washed pots and pans. At the age of 28, John Monahan was vice president of the Alsonett chain of hotels. He vowed never to make a promise that he couldn't keep, and to keep every promise even if it killed him. He was now selling himself.

Ben Tobin took him on as general sales manager of the Hollywood Hotel in Florida. Monahan began to hit his stride. He met a dark and beautiful girl named Peggy Sheehan and married her. This was the right partner. Monahan went into business for himself and was broke in two years. It is hardly the way to greet expected babies.

Sam Friedland, who is chairman of Food Fairs and owns the Diplomat Hotel in Florida, took him on as hotel sales manager. There, Monahan met Irving Cowan, president of the hotel and they ran the Diplomat up to the sky. The two men blended like ham on a bagel.

Today, John Monahan owns a beautiful home on Diplomat Way, in Hollywood, Fla. He has three children and he tells them about the virtues of making everything the hard way. Monday, Monahan starts a new job. He will be vice president of Diners Club and executive vice president of Diners-Fugazy Travel. He will earn twice as much as he ever did.

The most difficult thing for a man is to sell himself. To himself. . . .

Drew Pearson Says Mills' Loophole Protects Arkansas Banks and Bonds

WASHINGTON—While Ways and Means Chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., has been pressuring the White House for greater cuts in federal spending, he making sure that his own state of Arkansas isn't hurt.

Mills quietly slipped a loophole into the 10 per cent surtax bill, to protect big Arkansas taxpayers—chiefly banks and insurance companies.

The loophole nullifies a Treasury Department ruling that municipal industrial bonds, designed to attract new industries in various states, shall no longer be tax exempt.

Mills' loophole requires that such bonds shall remain tax exempt.

In the past, Arkansas has floated about a billion dollars worth of these municipal industrial bonds, more than any other state in the Union, aimed at attracting Northern industry to the South.

Mills' new loophole will mean that Arkansas bond holders will continue to enjoy tax exemption, at the expense of Northern industry and the other taxpayers of the nation.

Tribute to U. S. Troops
President Johnson was toasting Prime Minister John Gorton of Australia at a state dinner the other night. "I had a promise from Harold Holt," he said, "that if I lost my job here I could come to Australia and get a job. I wonder, Mr. Prime Minister, does that promise still hold good with you?"

The new prime minister promised that it did. He went on to pay a great tribute to American servicemen.

When American troops in South Vietnam have their choice of going to a nearby place for rest and recreation, he said, the majority choose Australia.

"They are taken into our homes," explained the prime minister, "and we enjoy them. There's not been a single complaint of untoward behavior by a single American soldier."

The French news signals the dangers to us in all attempts to belittle the FBI, smear Director J. Edgar Hoover and lull us to sleep about Soviet espionage in the United States.

We are hopelessly brainwashed if we fail to recognize in this campaign much of what Soviet-entrapped President Charles de Gaulle is experiencing.

When French Secret Service Col. Pierre Thyraud Vosjoly came to see me in New York on January 17 I urged him to write the expose of Soviet agents at top French levels published in Life magazine April 26. I knew Colonel Vosjoly officially and favorably and he risked a great deal in agreeing to write this, but he was properly reluctant as a foreigner, to include in print any parallels in our own country.

The prize and priceless information needed by any enemy nation is: What are this country's intentions and capabilities? That requires penetration at the decision-making, policy-making level.

Every government is penetrated by hidden enemy agents, the name for which is traitor. Every counterintelligence service operates on the basic assumption that the sole question is: To what extent?

Executed Soviet intelligence Col. Oleg V. Penkovsky confessed to British agent Greville Wynne, his Moscow trial defendant, the appalling scope of the Kremlin's British government penetrations by its undercover use of Britishers.

The senior Soviet KGB officer known as Maj. Gen. Anatol Dolynitsyn exposed, when

They have won the respect of the Australian people.

Lost His Cool

Steve Smith, efficient and usually cool brother-in-law of Sen. Bobby Kennedy, lost his "cool" on the evening of the Oregon primary defeat. He got on the telephone to Joe Cerrell, a Hubert Humphrey worker in California, to query him regarding an item in this column which told how Fred Dutton, an ardent Kennedy worker, had blown his top and told ex-Gov. Pat Brown that he was an "ingrate."

Brown had just come out for Vice President Humphrey. "I'm willing to bet you $1,000 that this never happened," said Steve Smith to Joe Cerrell.

Cerrell, who was present when Dutton blew his top over Pat Brown, said that it did happen. Smith, irate, shot back: "I'm going to call Hubert and get you fired."

Smith did not call Hubert. He cooled down.

Big Campaign Money

Every election year, the Justice Department looks the other way while political bagmen hustle millions of dollars, often in violation of the Corrupt Practices Act, to pay the campaign expenses of the nation's office-seekers. This is why a committee of Pulitzer Prize winners should be set up to investigate heavy campaign spending.

They should probe what the Justice Department ignores—the manner in which most of the great corporations keep political slush funds to help candidates who help them. This is against the law. But the corporations get around the law by collecting the money as individual contributions from their executives.

The Chrysler Corporation, for one, has suggested emphatically to its 3,500 executives that they donate to the party of their choice. Those whose salaries are over $25,000 have been urged to contribute in cash. A minimum of $5 for every $1,000 in annual income has been suggested.

Dwindling Negro Support

As returns came in from the hot Oregon primary, Louis Lomax, the Negro columnist, met State Sen. Mervyn Dymally, the Negro leader of Los Angeles and a member of the Kennedy forces. Lomax told him that Bobby was losing in Oregon.

"Good," said Kennedy's Negro leader for Los Angeles, Bobby had kept a Negro delegation waiting at his hotel for an hour and a half, then merely shook hands with them and excused himself to run to the airport. In addition, Sen. Dymally claimed that Kennedy was promoting apartheid policies similar to those of South Africa.

Remember, Communist imperialism will never act in the open if it can dispose of resistance in a hidden way.

The Kremlin's No. 1 target for espionage, confusion, bewilderment, internal warfare and subversion is America—the only nation the Soviet fears.

The FBI is our first—and only—defense against exactly the penetrations that entrapped President de Gaulle and let Philby "arrange things" as he did in England and proceed with the further entrapment of the United States.

Henry J. Taylor Says Back FBI, Our First Defense

The French news signals the dangers to us in all attempts to belittle the FBI, smear Director J. Edgar Hoover and lull us to sleep about Soviet espionage in the United States.

We are hopelessly brainwashed if we fail to recognize in this campaign much of what Soviet-entrapped President Charles de Gaulle is experiencing.

When French Secret Service Col. Pierre Thyraud Vosjoly came to see me in New York on January 17 I urged him to write the expose of Soviet agents at top French levels published in Life magazine April 26. I knew Colonel Vosjoly officially and favorably and he risked a great deal in agreeing to write this, but he was properly reluctant as a foreigner, to include in print any parallels in our own country.

The prize and priceless information needed by any enemy nation is: What are this country's intentions and capabilities? That requires penetration at the decision-making, policy-making level.

Every government is penetrated by hidden enemy agents, the name for which is traitor. Every counterintelligence service operates on the basic assumption that the sole question is: To what extent?

Executed Soviet intelligence Col. Oleg V. Penkovsky confessed to British agent Greville Wynne, his Moscow trial defendant, the appalling scope of the Kremlin's British government penetrations by its undercover use of Britishers.

The senior Soviet KGB officer known as Maj. Gen. Anatol Dolynitsyn exposed, when he defected to the West, both Harold A. R. (Kim) Philby, the master British spy, and George Paques, the NATO spy now in a French jail, Polish defector Col. Michael Goleniuk also exposed the Britishers.

British traitor Philby, when interviewed recently in Moscow, was asked by the London Daily Express how he got to the top of British intelligence. Philby's answer may sound casual but is enormously revealing: "I just arranged things so that I was invited."

Former CIA Chief Allen W. Dulles has stated that "the Soviet had over 40 high-level agents in various Washington departments and agencies during World War II. At least this many were uncovered; we don't know how many remained undetected."

It would be inconceivable to any experienced intelligence manager that there are any fewer in place in Washington today. And, believe me, they are easier to uncover than Kim Philby.

I have sat with Philby in meetings on U. S. espionage operations, most of them planned to block our Soviet enemy. His wife (uninvolved in his spying) was from Seattle. He was completely at home in the United States. I found Kim Philby able, imaginative and attractive.

His rank at the top of British intelligence had given him access to all secret U.S. plans and policies involving British interests or requiring British cooperation. It seems impossible to imagine that the Kim Philby I knew was a Soviet spy for 30 years and was revealing every plan to the Kremlin.

If you are mystified about many of our immense errors or failures in foreign policy or national defense, please realize that only part of these are due to stupidity or miscalculations. If you are shocked by how often we are the victim of surprise by the Red enemy, remember that, inevitably, traitorism is at work.

On May 21 I attended a lecture by an American famous for his controversial book about President Kennedy's assassination. Instead of even touching the material, he delivered a slick, insidious, unconscionable tirade against the FBI. If you hear the FBI slandered, or J. Edgar Hoover smeared, by lecturers or demonstrators or by less overt means, be on guard.

Remember, Communist imperialism will never act in the open if it can dispose of resistance in a hidden way.

The Kremlin's No. 1 target for espionage, confusion, bewilderment, internal warfare and subversion is America—the only nation the Soviet fears.

The FBI is our first—and only—defense against exactly the penetrations that entrapped President de Gaulle and let Philby "arrange things" as he did in England and proceed with the further entrapment of the United States.

Average Taxpayer to Be Hit

By GREGORY McLAUGHLIN

ALBANY, N. Y. — There's more bad news apparently ahead for the average state taxpayer.

Men knowledgeable in the field of state finance are saying privately that a gap of at least $600 million appears likely between revenue and spending for 1969-70.

They say the legislature only postponed the inevitable by the way it handled Gov. Rockefeller's $5.4-billion state budget during the session which ended last Saturday night.

The lawmakers readily agreed to the governor's proposals for increasing business taxes by $132 million. But they balked at his request for authority to raise personal income taxes through a 20 per cent surcharge.

Instead, mindful of their positions in an election year, they decided to put off payment—until the next fiscal year—of state aid payments totaling about $200 million.

True, they did add four new income tax brackets in a move designed to yield $95 million. But this applies only to persons with net taxable incomes beyond $15,000 a year.

At the same time, the lawmakers decided to call in state loans totaling about $95 million.

But the postponement of aid payments and the demand for the return of loan funds were one-shot devices.

Couple that total of $295 million with mandated spending by the state of $1.2 billion. But they balked at his request for authority to raise personal income taxes through a 20 per cent surcharge.

Election Barometer

One of the proven barometers of recent elections has been this: Ask what the leading issues of the coming election will be, then which political party you think can do a better job of handling that particular question. Over the last two decades, the answers to those questions have provided a sensitive forecast of voting behavior in each of the national elections so tested by the Gallup poll.

For instance, in 1966 the top problems were the war in Vietnam, racial strife and the high cost of living, the same as today. The poll gave the Democrats a 53 to 47 edge over the Republicans. The congressional elections that fall were split 52 to 48 in favor of the Democrats.

Before the Presidential election of 1964, the Democrats had a lead of 63 to 37 per cent. President Johnson won over Senator Barry Goldwater by a 61 to 39 per cent margin.

In 1962, the barometer worked again, when the poll showed the Democrats ahead by 58 to 42 and they won the Congressional election by the same decisive margin.

However, in 1960, the poll was very close. It showed almost identical results, which forecast the hairbreadth election of John F. Kennedy over Richard M. Nixon.

Again now, the poll shows the split between the parties 51 per cent Republicans to 49 per cent Democrats, forecasting another very close election this fall. This poll is on issues and parties, not individuals, mind you. What a given candidate on each party ticket will do to change this showing remains to be seen.

As of now, however, the barometer is rising with the Republicans. They can expect to win with any of their candidates — Nixon, Rockefeller or Reagan. The Democrats will have to work somewhat harder to overcome their fallback. They will need to determine which one of their candidates can best overcome the difference — Humphrey, Kennedy or McCarthy. Once the candidates are chosen, the reading may alter.

Johnson Tips His Hand

"If I could have one hope today, it would be this: That whoever may be President, wherever he may reside, whatever party he belongs to, he will look at the social record of the past five years and say 'We have just begun.'"

President Johnson thus made social progress in the United States decisive in his choice of a successor. Speaking to the International Ladies Garment Workers convention in Atlantic City, he went further and added, "I hope our next President will have just begun and will continue to build and heal and to unite the greatest nation in the world."

In so saying, Johnson used almost identical language with that which Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and his supporters are using, that he above all candidates for the Presidency can unite and heal this country. Johnson thus left no doubt about his own choice.

Times have changed and there are "new politics and participatory democracy," Johnson said, alluding to some of the things that the two Senate candidates for the Democratic nomination—Robert F. Kennedy and Eugene J. McCarthy—are pressing. But he added, "The old-time religion is good enough for me, and the old-time liberalism is good enough for me."

If any question remained about his meaning, Johnson quoted some writers who have compared his methods and those of Kennedy and McCarthy, and delivered the final coup: "These accomplishments may not have been achieved with charisma or style, but they were done."

He may speak more plainly before the Democratic national convention but Johnson has made clear his preference and his labor audience knows it.

Montclair, a well-to-do New Jersey suburb of New York, has a Negro Mayor the first time in its 100-year history. Its 43,000 residents, one fourth Negro, did not elect him. He received the largest vote for the town commission. His four all white colleagues elected him their chairman or Mayor. It is no longer unique for a Negro to head a city government in this country.

Unless Congress raises taxes within the next few weeks, look for another interest rate rise, the American Bankers Association was told. Both Federal Reserve and Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation officials joined in fixing July 1 as a possible date for the increase in interest rates if Congress does not raise taxes. Inflation waits for no man.

To release surplus labor to regions where there is a labor shortage, a Soviet mathematician urges a tax to discourage factories from overstaffing their personnel rolls. Apparently, Soviet factory managers store surplus labor against a time when they are needed, a very wasteful practice which private enterprise would discard as unprofitable.

Spare the Rod

Inflation Builds Up, Nation Faces Crisis

WASHINGTON — The inflation crisis is building up. The administration is issuing sharp warnings, and so is the head of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. The emphasis being placed on the need for a tax increase and a cut in the budget is unprecedented. But Congress doesn't seem to be too anxious, just before an election campaign, to vote a raise in taxes. The administration isn't enthusiastic about cutting expenses.

The open letter to businessmen issued on Tuesday by Winton M. Blount, president of the Chamber of Commerce, says in part: "This nation faces a financial crisis. Essentially, this crisis has arisen because of enormous deficit spending by the government. Under present circumstances, the government may spend at least 24 billion dollars more in the fiscal year 1969 than it collects in taxes. The estimated deficit for the current fiscal year (1968) is 23 billion dollars."

"Deficit spending of this magnitude does irreparable harm. It breeds intolerable inflation. . . . It compels abnormally high interest rates. It reduces the competitiveness of American products, making our balance of payments all the more critical."

Coincidentally, the administration itself makes public a memorandum from Arthur M. Okun, chairman of the President's Council of Economic advisers, which draws attention to a report from the Bureau of Labor Statistics concerning wage and price developments during the first quarter of this year. The memorandum says:

"Reflecting the widespread strength of demand and rising costs, virtually all commodity and service groups registered sharp advances in prices. . . ."

"The rate of increase in prices of manufactured goods more than doubled, reflecting rising costs and strong demand. . . ."

"Both wage rates and hourly compensation rose more rapidly in the first quarter than at any time in more than a decade. . . . The outlook is for even higher settlements this quarter, as evidenced by the telephone settlement and recent construction bargaining. . . ."

"Profits gained in the first quarter despite the higher labor costs. . . ."

"Wage and profit behavior once again demonstrated the self-defeating nature of inflation. . . ."

"Fiscal restraint is a must to moderate demand and to achieve a slowdown in price increases. Until a tax increase is enacted, there will be growing strains on prices, costs, imports, and financial markets at home and abroad."

But the chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers says that, even with action on the tax bill, "the route back to price stability will be long and difficult."

Similar observations have been made for the last year and a half. The pressure for some kind of deflationary measure, such as an increase in taxes, has been steadily growing. Nobody likes a tax increase—least of all the politicians—but the economists say it is necessary to curb inflation or, at the minimum, to hold down the rate of acceleration.

An economic decline would, of course, affect the general public. It would have effects abroad, too. Once a deflation gets going, it can move faster than the proponents of the tax increase ever thought it would. But, as has happened so often in the past, the remedies that should be applied are better seen in retrospect—after the climax has come.

The President's Council of Economic Advisers sums up the current situation this way: "The over-all economic environment of booming demand is the main explanation for the acceleration of price and cost increases."

As long as a boom seems to be in progress, it is hard to convince members of Congress that they should enact an increase in taxes. Their excuse, of course, is that the administration has failed to come up with a substantial cut in expenditures. As a matter of fact, a curtailment of several billions in government spending would tend to slow down the boom in many areas.

It is the same old story—the government waits until the economic conditions of the country really turn bad before it begins to apply corrective measures.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

The most difficult thing for a man to sell is himself. Some can sell machinery, or household goods, or cars. In this they must sell a bit of themselves to the customer, or he will try elsewhere. But when a man has nothing to offer except his character, his integrity, his intellect, I stand in his presence with my hat over my heart.

John Francis Monahan did it and he did it big. If you had seen him 25 years ago among a million kids, you'd have said: "That one is going to be a bum." It would have constituted an intelligent assessment. The kid was a wise guy.

There were reasons, I guess. John Monahan, born in Evanston, Ill., of Warren L. Monahan, an executive of a small company selling olive oil, olives and salad dressings, found life a bit easy. He had spending money. Clothes. A bicycle. One night when John was little, his father drove the car over a railroad crossing. A train killed him.

Life became harsh. It became easier to do a buddy out of a quarter than to earn one. Three years later, John's mother died suddenly. The world was becoming too tough to bear, so John said the hell with it. Nothing was permanent, including love.

He went to live with two older sisters—Betty and Patricia—but they lacked control. They were single, and a growing boy is a unique mystery. They sent him to study with the Benedictine Sisters at St. Edmund's Hall in Nauvoo, Ill. John Monahan became a drop out before anyone knew what the word meant. He went back to Betty's house, an old stucco place at 1500 Sherwin Avenue, Chicago.

She fed his body, but his mind was racing downhill at top speed. He admired the neighborhood toughs who could fight. He joined the no-work, no-school crowd. Once, John consensated to be a liegier at Tuohy Avenue on Lake Michigan. It gave him a chance to show off his big skinny frame, his jet hair and a handsome grin.

He went off to war young. The 95th Division of Ohio didn't need Monahan, and he never did better than buck private. His credo was Liberty. Money. Girls. When he got out in 1946, he and some buddies bought an old YP navy boat and set off down the Mississippi for Acapulco and a life of ease.

In Havana, a crewman was killed by a woman and John Francis Monahan learned, late, that nobody owed him a living and no one cared. He was 21 years old when he discovered a thing called education. He went to Miami and, although he had only 18 months of high school, took the entrance examinations at the University of Miami and passed.

His monumental mind told him that the best life would be as a diplomat in South America. So he majored in history, Spanish and good manners. To pay his way, he took an ugly job: orderly in the Veterans Hospital in Coral Gables. He couldn't even mooch a hamburger; it had to be earned.

In five years he had his Bachelor of Arts and he drove a Model A Ford to Washington. The politicians never heard of him. He drove back to Betty and sold the car for

$65. The diplomat took a job at the Edgewater Beach Hotel as room clerk. William M. Dewey, the owner, said: "John, if you will be the best in whatever you propose to be, people will stuff money in your pocket."

He ran an elevator. He washed pots and pans. At the age of 28, John Monahan was vice president of the Alsonett chain of hotels. He vowed never to make a promise that he couldn't keep, and to keep every promise even if it killed him. He was now selling himself.

Ben Tobin took him on as general sales manager of the Hollywood Hotel in Florida. Monahan began to hit his stride. He met a dark and beautiful girl named Peggy Sheehan and married her. This was the right partner. Monahan went into business for himself and was broke in two years. It is hardly the way to greet expected babies.

Sam Friedland, who is chairman of Food Fairs and owns the Diplomat Hotel in Florida, took him on as hotel sales manager. There, Monahan met Irving Cowan, president of the hotel and they ran the Diplomat up to the sky. The two men blended like ham on a bagel.

Today, John Monahan owns a beautiful home on Diplomat Way, in Hollywood, Fla. He has three children and he tells them about the virtues of making everything the hard way. Monday, Monahan starts a new job. He will be vice president of Diners Club and executive vice president of Diners-Fugazy Travel. He will earn twice as much as he ever did.

The most difficult thing for a man is to sell himself. To himself. . . .

Drew Pearson Says Mills' Loophole Protects Arkansas Banks and Bonds

WASHINGTON—While Ways and Means Chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., has been pressuring the White House for greater cuts in federal spending, he making sure that his own state of Arkansas isn't hurt.

Mills quietly slipped a loophole into the 10 per cent surtax bill, to protect big Arkansas taxpayers—chiefly banks and insurance companies.

The loophole nullifies a Treasury Department ruling that municipal industrial bonds, designed to attract new industries in various states, shall no longer be tax exempt. Mills' loophole requires that such bonds shall remain tax exempt.

In the past, Arkansas has floated about a billion dollars worth of these municipal industrial bonds, more than any other state in the Union, aimed at attracting Northern industry to the South.

Mills' new loophole will mean that Arkansas bond holders will continue to enjoy tax exemption, at the expense of Northern industry and the other taxpayers of the nation.

Tribute to U. S. Troops

President Johnson was toasting Prime Minister John Gorton of Australia at a state dinner the other night. "I had a promise from Harold Holt," he said, "that if I lost my job here I could come to Australia and get a job. I wonder, Mr. Prime Minister, does that promise still hold good with you?"

The new prime minister promised that it did. He went on to pay a great tribute to American servicemen.

When American troops in South Vietnam have their choice of going to a nearby place for rest and recreation, he said, the majority choose Australia.

"They are taken into our homes," explained the prime minister, "and we enjoy them. There's not been a single complaint of untoward behavior by a single American soldier."

They have won the respect of the Australian people."

Lost His Cool

Steve Smith, efficient and usually cool brother-in-law of Sen. Bobby Kennedy, lost his "cool" on the evening of the Oregon primary defeat. He got on the telephone to Joe Cerrell, a Hubert Humphrey worker in California, to query him regarding an item in this column which told how Fred Dutton, an ardent Kennedy worker, had blown his top and told ex-Gov. Pat Brown that he was an "ingrate."

Brown had just come out for Vice President Humphrey.

"I'm willing to bet you $1,000 that this never happened," said Steve Smith to Joe Cerrell.

Cerrell, who was present when Dutton blew his top over Pat Brown, said that it did happen. Smith, irate, s o back: "I'm going to call Hubert and get you fired."

Smith did not call Hubert. He cooled down.

Big Campaign Money

Every election year, the Justice Department looks the other way while political bagmen hustle millions of dollars, often in violation of the Corrupt Practices Act, to pay the campaign expenses of the nation's office-seekers. This is why a committee of Pulitzer Prize winners should be set up to investigate heavy campaign spending.

They should probe what the Justice Department ignores—the manner in which most of the great corporations keep political slush funds to help candidates who help them. This is against the law. But the corporations get around the law by collecting the money as individual contributions from their executives.

The Chrysler Corporation, for one, has suggested emphatically to its 3,500 executives that they donate to the party of their choice. Those whose salaries are over $25,000 have been urged to contribute in cash. A minimum of $5 for every $1,000 in annual income has been suggested.

Average Taxpayer to Be Hit

By GREGORY McLAUGHLIN

ALBANY, N. Y. — There's more bad news apparently ahead for the average state taxpayer.

Men knowledgeable in the field of state finance are saying privately that a gap of at least $600 million appears likely between revenue and spending for 1969-70.

They say the legislature only postponed the inevitable by the way it handled Gov. Rockefeller's $5.4-billion state budget during the session which ended last Saturday night.

The lawmakers readily agreed to the governor's proposals for increasing business taxes by $132 million. But they balked at his request for authority to raise personal income taxes through a 20 per cent surcharge.

Instead, mindful of their positions in an election year, they decided to put off payment—until the next fiscal year—of state aid payments totaling about $200 million.

True, they did add four new income tax brackets in a move designed to yield $95 million. But this applies only to persons with net taxable incomes beyond $15,000 a year.

At the same time, the lawmakers decided to call in state loans totaling about $95 million.

But the postponement of aid payments and the demand for the return of loan funds were one-shot devices.

Couple that total of $295 million with mandated spending and other "normal" demands—estimated to run $300 million—and you have a general picture of the kind of money needed to balance the budget for 1969-70.

In his budget message this year, the governor used bond funds to cover all but $1 million of the $391 million road-building program. Prospects are the highway program will be handled that way again next year.

That's an example of the kind of pressure bearing in on the state's financial structure.

It is highly unlikely that the administration will hit the business community with another tax increase. The one adopted during the recent session was the first in nine years.

Thus, the financial people say, only an increase in a broad-based tax can yield the kind of money that will be needed to strike a budget balance.

Inevitably, it appears, the burden must fall on the average taxpayer—through a straight boost in income taxes and perhaps an increase in the state sales levy.

Rondout Music: Section Honors

Plaudits, accolades and top scoring honors came the way of Rondout Valley High School music students for yet another year.

At recent New York State School Music Association competitions, the senior high concert band received the top rating of 6A plus for the second consecutive year. The chamber singers won the first 6A choir rating ever received by a Rondout Valley group.

The 6A plus rating achieved by the concert band was the only such rating earned in Ulster County. Last year this group was one of the only 12 bands in the state to receive this top rating.

Juniors Rated

Even more remarkable in the opinion of Lee Herrington, band director, was the 4A plus rating awarded to the junior band.

Since only two junior bands received this rating last year, Herrington said this would indicate the Rondout junior band is among the top five in the state.

A third band, the RVC Select Elementary Band, Walter Highland, director, attained a 1A plus rating.

The chamber singers were in their third consecutive year at competition. Prior to their top rating achievement this year, the singers had earned 4A and 5A ratings. The senior choir in its second year of competition, received a 5B score.

The junior high choir as newcomers to NYSSMA competition received an A in Grade 1 for soprano-alto-baritone church in which grade 3 is the highest possible grade.

While the judges lauded the "excellent teaching," Herrington and Mrs. Barbara Lottridge, vocal music director, both expressed their satisfaction with the fine ratings achieved by their students.

In other NYSSMA competition 78 soloists and members of ensembles from RVCS received A ratings. Among these were 16 students and ensembles who received the highest 6A score.

Also, Linda Sarr, Nancy Boss, Dale Mayberry and Suzanne Friedman.

Booster awards were presented at the annual band recognition banquet held recently at the Rondout Valley High School cafeteria. The dinner is sponsored by the Band Boosters Organization each year.

THE TOPS — Rondout Valley Music students heaped up more awards at the recent New York State Music Association competitions. Five of the 12 RVHS who earned top 6A solo ratings are (seated) Barbara Bushnell, Nancy Boss; (standing) Dale Mayberry, Lana Slater and Keith Gorham. Mayberry and Miss Boss scored on instrument and voice while the other three, all underclassmen, earned second or third straight 6As this year. (Freeman photo by Kruh).

16 Honor Seniors

Eighteen seniors have qualified as honor graduates of the Class of 1968 at Rondout Valley Central High School, Principal Sherman V. Wilbur has announced. Students who are classified as Honor Graduates have achieved a 3 and 4/5 average of 85 per cent without failing a subject or a Regents examination.

Led by Valedictorian Michael Denkssohn and Saultatorian Andrea Oleksiv, the other 16 Honor Graduates, in alphabetical order, are:

Bernice Barr, Frances Black, Margaret Christiana, Evelyn Clementz, Kathleen Connell, Jannigjen DeJager, Iris Gersh, Charles Hansen, Karen Lieberman, Steven Lineham, Michael Martin, Catherine Mills, Natalie Robertshaw, Barbara Rucki, Ellen Sussak and Glen Van Gorden.

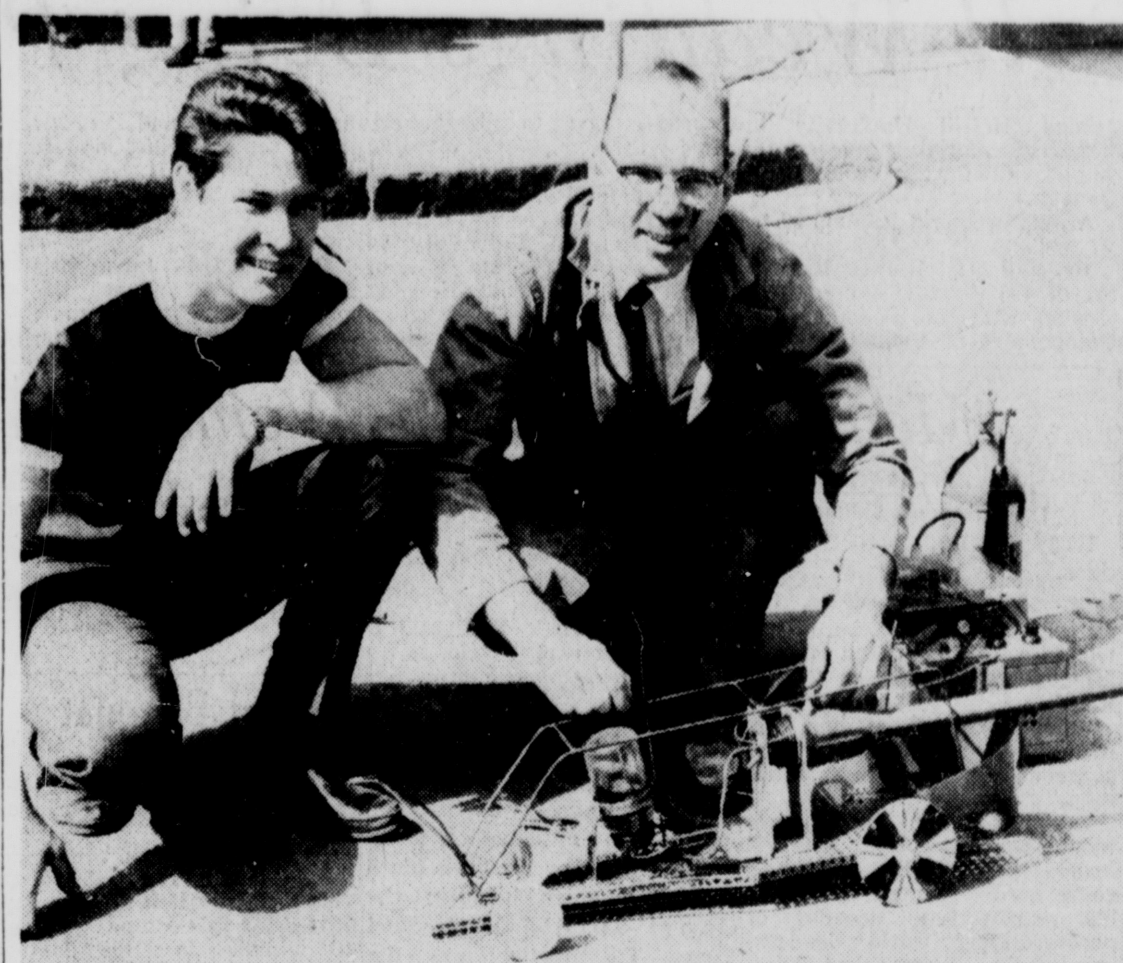

Sounds Yummy

Roasted grasshoppers, toasted caterpillars, chocolate-covered ants, octopus, snail, and other mouth-watering goodies.

That's the menu planned for Orange County Community College students at the OCCC Agassiz Society's annual exotic foods coffee hour on Tuesday, 11 a. m. in the college's Orange Hall lounge. The society is made of biology students. For those with less-adventurous stomachs, the society has promised to provide just plain coffee and donuts.

CANBERRA (UPI) — John Cope, Labor Party member of parliament, today called on the Australian government to take action to protect baby carriage manufacturers who he said had been "gravely affected" because birth control pills had led to a decrease in sales.

KHS: The Space Age

Kingston High School student Warren Pelham joined the jet set recently with trial runs being recorded on movie film.

A general transportation class experiment resulted in his building a jet vehicle which was tested in a controlled situation in a driveway at KHS Industrial Arts Building. Movie film and still shots were taken for further study and improvement through an assist from Garin Sheeley and the Graphic Arts classes.

The results of the experiment provided 12 runs, with five run completed with a vast group of spectators.

Select Local Collegian For Orientation Program

James W. Winslow, son of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Winslow of 79 Howland Avenue, Kingston, has been chosen from more than one hundred undergraduate applicants at Albany State University to take part in that college's summer orientation program for new transfer and freshman students.

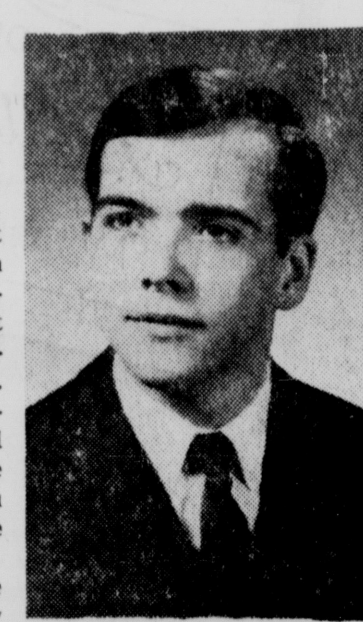

Winslow will join thirteen other student leaders to provide a weekly program which will help to both finalize fall programming in academics and give a preview of "Albany Student Life."

"The biggest task of these fourteen young people is to make each and every new matriculating student feel that he should and can take advantage of all that Albany State has to offer," commented Dr. Sorrell Chesin, dean of students at Albany State.

Winslow has just completed his sophomore year of studies at Albany. He has served as a representative to the student government legislative body, Central Council, for the past two years. Also, he has written sports for the university student newspaper, the ASP. Next year, Jim will assume the position of Associate Sports Editor.

As a freshman, he was a member of the freshman basketball team for State, and was the president of the Sigma Tau Beta Fraternity spring pledge class.

Winslow is a political science major, concentrating in pre-law studies.

An elderly man complained in his diary about the day's "mighty barbarous music." He wasn't somebody's father complaining about the new Monkee record—he was Samuel Pepys commenting on bagpipe music centuries ago. To this day, a lot of people still think the bagpipe sounds "mighty barbarous." However, one modern dolly remarked interestingly that the bagpipe division of a parade sounded like a sitar to her.

Persian Origin

Bagpipes do have an East Indian drone, and well they might, for they, like the sitar, had their origins in Persia. Many people know there are Scotch and Irish bagpipes, but few know the bagpipes of Greece, Italy, and Spain. When the ancient Romans went tromping about capturing nations, they captured Persia's bagpipes, too, and spread them over the vast Roman Empire. The pipes became most developed in Britain, particularly, as if you didn't know, in Scotland.

Like many British things, the pipes are spreading in popularity. There are American piper corps in parades without a Scotsman in the lot. There are several albums of Scotch and Irish folk songs rendered (and sometimes rendered, by single pipers. And now, bagpipes are skirling in to popular music.

In jazz, 31-year-old Rufus Harley was inspired to try to adapt the bagpipes to jazz when he heard them play at President Kennedy's funeral. So far, he has released two jazz pipe records, "Bagpipe Blues" and "Scotch and Soul." Now, other jazz artists are often including a touch of bagpipe in their albums.

Far-out rock groups, looking for a new way to psychodelicate their recordings, added a bagpipe track. Of course, it wasn't too long before they wanted the sound outside of the studio, too, and several group members have started blowing the bags. At least one group now features a pipe with a wild op-art in place of the traditional plaid.

Electronics Yet

Bagpipe traditionalists are horrified, of course. (The old formula for becoming a pipe player was seven generations of pipers followed by seven years of training.) Bagpipes are notoriously hard to master, and the process of learning them results in some certainly "mighty barbarous sounds." Somewhere, surely, somebody though has figured out how to hook up a bagpipe to an electric amplifier and . . . Well, if your parents make you throw out the drum set, you could always start to master "White Rabbit" on the electrical bagpipe!

Rondout Music: Section Honors

Plaudits, accolades and top scoring honors came the way of Rondout Valley High School music students for yet another year.

At recent New York State School Music Association competitions, the senior high concert band received the top rating of 6A plus for the second consecutive year. The chamber singers won the first 6A choir rating ever received by a Rondout Valley choral group. The 6A plus rating achieved by the concert band was the only such rating earned in Ulster County. Last year this group was one of the only 12 bands in the state to receive this top rating.

Juniors Rated

Even more remarkable in the opinion of Lee Herrington, band director, was the 4A plus rating awarded to the junior band.

Since only two junior bands received this rating last year, Herrington said this would indicate the Rondout junior band is among the top five in the state.

A third band, the RVC Select Elementary Band, Walter Higland, director, attained a 1A plus rating.

The chamber singers were in their third consecutive year at competition. Prior to their top rating achievement this year, the singers had earned 4A and 5A ratings. The senior choir in its second year of competition, received a 5B score.

The junior high choir as newcomers to NYSSMA competition received an A in Grade 1 for soprano-alto-baritone church in which grade 3 is the highest possible grade.

While the judges lauded the "excellent teaching," Herrington and Mrs. Barbara Lottridge, vocal music director, both expressed their satisfaction with the fine ratings achieved by their students.

In other NYSSMA competition 78 soloists and members of ensembles from RVCS received A ratings. Among these were 16 students and ensembles who received the highest 6A score.

Also, Linda Sarr, Nancy Boss, Dale Mayberry and Suzanne Friedman.

'Men Vainer Than Women', Says Karsh

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Next time hubby complains about time you spend before the mirror, have the last word. Just tell him the comment of the famous photographer, Yousuf Karsh.

"Men are vainer than women," says Karsh. "And surgeons are the vainest of all men."

Karsh said he didn't know why the masculine side is loaded with vanity; but he's come across it often enough in his nearly four decades of photographing world leaders, men who've distinguished themselves in the professions, the world's most beautiful women.

Catches Character
Vanity or no, Karsh said, he tried to catch the character of his subject, whether it be the late Sir Winston Churchill, the late Eleanor Roosevelt, President Johnson, Helen Keller, Princess Grace of Monaco, or Brigitte Bardot.

"Young women are the easiest subjects," the Ottawa-based photographer said in an interview. "They are so natural, this favors the photographer."

Karsh soon will be photographing a whole new group of women around the nation. He's the portraitist chosen by Burlington House, the fabrics and home furnishings division of Burlington Industries, which is launching an annual "10 best dressed homes" award. Announcement of the "competition" will be made at a formal dinner in New York next Monday and the awards to the homes so honored will be given in January.

Raymond Kassir, president of Burlington House, explained that the idea is to lend good taste, without regard to amounts spent in the home. Home furnishings editors from newspapers and magazines will do the screening and judging of the homes in their areas—the country has been divided into 10 regions. Photographer Horst will picture the rooms; Karsh will photograph the owner in her (or his) home environment.

Karsh is Armenian born and came to Canada in 1925 during the Turkish wars in his homeland. An uncle, already settled in Ottawa, was a photographer and he sent his teen-aged nephew to Boston to study.

After the banquet William Hawk presented a slide program of pictures he had taken on a tour to California in 1966. The president presented an outline of programs for the coming year, September through June. Details will be formulated at a future meeting.

President Patryk announced the winners of the "Slide of the Year" competition. Entries submitted for this competition were all winners in slide contests held by the club throughout the year. Judging was done by Fred Sass, former New York Times photographer and currently an instructor in photography at Dutchess Community College.

Vernon Lamson submitted the winning slide with Mary Patryk and Joseph McNelis, runners up.

Other officers installed were Sol Holzman, first vice president; Mary Patryk, second vice president; Charles Gumaer, sec-

Election Held

Mrs. Egbert H. Bogardus of Sharon, Conn., was elected president of the Taconic Smith College Club at its annual meeting on May 17. Other officers elected were Miss Helen C. Denman of Copake, recording secretary; Mrs. Thomas W. Tuttle of Ghent, corresponding secretary; Miss Evelyn E. Clark of Hillsdale, honorary vice president. Remaining in office are Mrs. Allan Atherton of Woodstock and Mrs. G. C. Balfe Jr. of Newburgh, first and second vice presidents; Miss Ruth Buswell of Hillsdale, treasurer. The meeting, held at Cottonwood Inn on Route 44, near Millbrook, was preceded by a luncheon with Mrs. E. Kester Wickman of Lakeville, Conn., as hostess. Miss Helen Washburn of Sheffield, Mass., retiring president, conducted the meeting at which annual reports were made by the officers and committee chairmen. The club voted to give $800, raised by its annual sale of pecans, to the College for scholarships, to be used for qualified students from the area covered by the club's membership. After the business session Mrs. Bogardus gave an interesting talk and showed color slides taken on her recent trip to South America.

Final Meeting

St. Mary's Altar-Rosary Society will meet Monday, June 3, in the first floor meeting room of the school hall at 8 p.m. for the final meeting of the season. New members are welcome.

After the business meeting the quilting project will be continued and refreshments will be served. All members are urged to attend.

Tigers Take Fourth In Row, 1-0, Off Yanks

DETROIT (UPI)—Willie Horton hit his 14th homer in leading off the seventh inning against Mel Stottlemyre Friday night to give the Detroit Tigers a 1-0 victory over the New York Yankees behind Mickey Lolich's four-hitter.

Horton, who has now hit three home runs in Detroit's last four games, lined a 32 pitch off Stottlemyre into the lower deck in left to give Lolich his third win in five decisions. Stottlemyre is now 6-4.

It was the fourth straight victory for the league-leading Tigers. Lolich allowed the Yankees just two hits, both by Bobby Cox, until catcher Ellie Rodriguez and pinch hitter Charlie Smith smacked successive singles to open the eighth and put runners on first and third with none out.

But the Tiger lefty, who walked four and struck out eight, struck out Horace Clarke and got Roy White on a shallow fly ball to right before walking Mickey Mantle intentionally to load the bases. But Andy Kosco lifted a high pop up to right to close out the inning.

Horton, playing on his chronically tender left heel, stretched his hitting streak to 13 games as the league-leading Tigers recorded their eleventh one-run victory.

Yaz and Bosox Pin 3-0 Loss on Birds

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

The second-place Baltimore Orioles, trying to keep pace with the red hot American League leaders, the Detroit Tigers, ran into a stumbling block Friday night, the hot bat of the AL's 1967 MVP Triple Crown winner, Carl Yastrzemski and his Boston teammates.

The Boston Red Sox beat the Orioles 3-0, the Cleveland Indians downed the Washington Senators 8-3, the Chicago White Sox edged the Minnesota Twins 2-1 in 14 innings and the California Angels defeated the Oakland Athletics 3-0 in 12 innings in other American League games.

Ken Harrelson hit a two-run homer and Carl Yastrzemski also homered to back Gary Bell's five-hit pitching against the Orioles. Harrelson's fourth homer in six games came in the third inning off Jim Hardin and Yastrzemski's seventh homer of the year was off Moe Drabowsky in the eighth. Bell pitched a five-hitter in raising his record to 4-1.

Lee Maye, Tony Horton and Tommy Harper hit homers and Luis Tiant scattered eight hits for the Indians, who dealt Phil Ortega his fourth loss. Tiant struck out four and walked none in scoring his seventh victory and pitching his eighth complete game in 10 starts.

Luis Aparicio broke up the 14-inning game in Chicago with a bunt single with the bases filled and one out. Aparicio, batting with the Minnesota infield in close, pushed the bunt past pitcher Bob Miller, enabling Dick Kenworthy to score. Bob Allison homered in the seventh to tie the score for the Twins after shortstop Jackie Hernandez' two-base throwing error and Duane Josephson's single enabled the White Sox to take a 1-0 lead in the sixth.

Bob Rodgers' three-run homer with two out in the 12th gave the Angels their triumph over the Athletics' Chuck Dobson, who gave up only five hits and struck out 13. Chuck Hinton was on base with a single and Jimmie Hall with a walk when Rodgers connected.

Owners Vote to Ban Turbines From Indy

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)—

The battle of the turbines at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway was in round 2 today with 500-mile race winner Bobby Unser and a large segment of the racing fraternity opposing Andy Granatelli, whose brainstrom set off the controversy.

As the Speedway's new champion and his crew took home a record payoff of $177,523, members of the National Championship Car Owners Association adopted a resolution to ban turbines from USAC competition.

Speedway officials announced Friday night a total purse of $710,219 for the 33 starters, more than $24,000 off last year's record. Unser's take, however, was $6,000 more than 1967 winner A. J. Foyt received.

Chief Stewart Harlan Fengler congratulated the field and said "the performance proved how fine you can be." Fengler gave Unser a special salute for "winning against competitors of the highest caliber."

More than 1,500 attended the victory banquet.

BLASTING OUT — Is Atlanta Golf Classic leader Tommy Aaron, using his sand wedge to get out of the trap on hole number three. Aaron, who has never won on the PGA tour, took a two-stroke lead at the halfway mark in the tourney. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Aaron May Finally End Win Drought

By DAVID M. MOFFIT

UPI Sports Writer

ATLANTA (UPI)—Long frustrated Tommy Aaron may be on the threshold of his first-ever professional golf victory after eight years on the tournament trail.

But Aaron, holding a two-stroke lead going into today's third round of the $115,000 Atlanta Golf Classic, knows better than most that anything can happen during these remaining 36 holes.

A pretty good example was offered Friday by first-round leader Tom Weiskopf who skied to an 11-over-par 83 and became the first opening round leader since Lee Mackay met similar disaster in the 1950 U.S. Open to fail to make the halfway cut.

The 31-year-old Aaron, pride of nearby Gainesville, Ga., has become known as the "bridesmaid of the PGA" as he has finished second on seven different occasions but been unable to take that remaining step into the winner's circle.

"I've been playing better the past five or six weeks than I ever played in any previous span," Aaron said after shooting a 2-under-par 70 Friday for a 36-hole total of 5-under-par 139.

Speedy Wende, driven by Bobby Camper from the five slot, (but the number six in betting, with Al Burton's 63 favored entry of Victory Camer and Sharp Cat) overhauled the leaders at the top of the stretch, coming four-wide down the middle of the track to take his first win of 1968.

Owned by Alfred F. Lacroix of Chicopee, Mass., and the daughter of Speedster and Bonnie M. Lynn out of Lusy Song, Speedy Wende went off at 7-2 on the board, the co-second favorite with Jamie's Beauty.

Zinnia Hanover and Prilly swapped the lead most of the first half mile with the initial quarter going in a speedy :30 and the half in 1:01.

By the time they hit the half, backers payoffs of $9.80, $3.00 Mr. Spindieop had the lead on and $4.20.

Gruner, Bach in Tourney

Paul Gruner and Brian Bach, a pair of former Kingston High School players, will be looked to for some much needed help by the team they are now playing for, the University of Connecticut. The UConn's open the NCAA District I baseball championships Mondays.

Gruner, a converted catcher, will be the starting rightfielder in Monday's opener against Providence College. UConn's facilities have been chosen for the four-team, double elimination tourney. The winner goes to the National Championships in Omaha, June 10.

Bach, an outstanding pitcher while at KHS, started off the season strong, but has experienced some difficulty of late and has been relegated to the third starter's role. He doubles as the short relief man.

Gruner, hitting .286, stroked 18 hits in 63 at-bats, including a double and a triple plus eight RBIs. He has also tallied off somewhat after raising his average over .300 with 15 hits in eight games. He is a fixture at the picket post for the tourney.

Back appeared in six contests and owns a 1-2 win-loss record in 33 1/3 innings. He allowed 20 hits, 11 runs, eight of them earned, 19 walks and struck out 27 in compiling a 2.14 earned run average.

will be the starting rightfielder in Monday's opener against Providence College. UConn's facilities have been chosen for the four-team, double elimination tourney. The winner goes to the National Championships in Omaha, June 10.

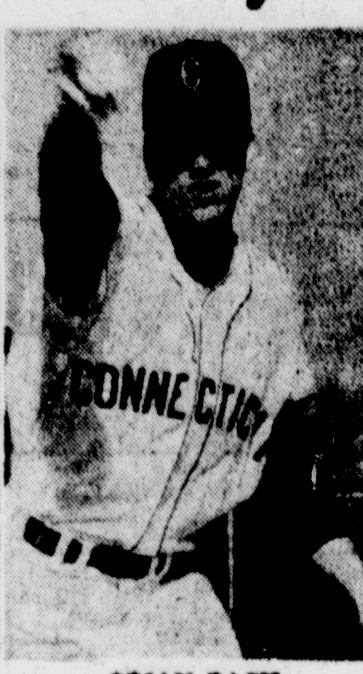

Bach, an outstanding pitcher while at KHS, started off the season strong, but has experienced some difficulty of late and has been relegated to the third starter's role. He doubles as the short relief man.

Gruner, hitting .286, stroked 18 hits in 63 at-bats, including a double and a triple plus eight RBIs. He has also tailed off somewhat after raising his average over .300 with 15 hits in eight games. He is a fixture at the picket post for the tourney.

Back appeared in six contests and owns a 1-2 won-loss record in 33 1/3 innings. He allowed 20 hits, 11 runs, eight of them earned, 19 walks and struck out 27 in compiling a 2.14 earned run average. UConn, 15-8 overall, the

NOTICE OF TENTATIVE COMPLETION OF ASSESSMENT ROLL
(Pursuant to section 506 of the Real Property Tax Law)

Notice is hereby given that the Assessors of the Town of Kingston, County of Ulster, have completed their tentative Assessment Roll for the current year, that a copy thereof has been left with Joseph A. Carcamo at R.D. 2, Box 45, Kingston, N. Y., where it may be seen and examined by any person interested therein until the THIRD TUESDAY OF JUNE NEXT, and that on such day between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. for a total of at least four hours, said assessors will meet at the Town Hall, Sawkill, N. Y., in the said town, to hear and examine all verified written complaints in relation to such assessments, on the application of any person believing himself aggrieved thereby.

Dated: 28th day of May, 1968.

JOSEPH A. CARCAMO, Assessor

PROCLAMATION
THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK,
By the Sheriff of the County of Ulster:

Whereas, a Trial Term of Supreme Court and Jail Delivery is to be held in and for the County of Ulster, at the Court House, in the City of Kingston, on Monday the 3rd day of June, 1968.

We command you in pursuance of the provisions of Section 222-a of the Code of Criminal Procedure, in that case made and provided:

FIRST: That you summon the several persons who have been drawn in said County of Ulster, pursuant to law, to serve as Grand Jurors and Trial Jurors at the said Court to appear thereat.

SECOND: That you bring before the said Court all prisoners then being in the Jail of said County, together with all process and proceedings in any way concerning them in your hands as such Sheriff.

THIRD: That you make Proclamation, in the manner prescribed by Section 222-a of the Code of Criminal Procedure, notifying all persons bound to appear at the said Court, to appear thereat, and requiring all Justices of the Peace, Coroners, and other officers who have taken any recognition for the appearance of any person at such Court, or who shall have taken any inquisition, or the examination of any prisoner or witness, to return such recognizances, inquisitions and examinations on to the said Court at the opening thereof, at the first day of its sitting.

WITNESS, Hon. Roscoe F. Worth, one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, at the Court House in the City of Kingston, this 14th day of May, in the year one thousand nine hundred and sixty-eight.

JOSEPH F. TORRACA, District Attorney of the County of Ulster.

In pursuance of the above precept, I hereby make Proclamation that a term of Supreme Court of Ulster County and Jail delivery will be held at the Court House in Kingston, in and for the County of Ulster, the 3rd day of June, 1968 at 11 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, and all persons who will be present at the said Court, to do those things which to their office pertain.

WITNESS, William E. Martin, Sheriff of Ulster County, Dated: City of Kingston, May 14, 1968.

Successful Canvass
Ross K. Osterhout of Stone Ridge, town chairman for the 1968 Cancer Crusade in the Town of Marlborough announced today that a house to house canvass of the town has been completed with success.

A total sum of $1,533.00 was raised, all by local volunteers who went from door to door throughout the entire community. It is the largest amount ever raised in Marlborough for this cause.

The people of the Marlborough Community are proud of the fact each year for the past several years they have exceeded their quota asked by the Cancer Society, and that the collections made compare very favorably with amounts raised in other communities of comparable size and population, Osterhout said.

Dear Abby

Heed Ma, She Knows Best

SHE KNOWS BEST BY ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 and am going with a guy who is 18. We plan to get married as soon as I graduate from high school. I have a part-time job after school and on Saturdays, and here is our problem:

We don't want to start our married life with nothing, so we started a joint savings account at the bank. My mother found out about it and said it wasn't "right" for us to have a joint account. Why not? My mother says that she believes in saving, but she should have his and I should have mine, and she has never heard of a 16-year-old having a joint savings account with a guy before they get married.

Abby, I don't see what's wrong with it. My mother listens to you, so please put your answer in the paper.

DEAR UPSET: I am pleased to learn that your mother listens to me, but since you wrote to me, I hope you will, too. I agree with your mother. Send me your name and address and I'll explain more fully in a personal letter.

DEAR ABBY: What is your opinion of a man, 42, dropping his bride of 10 months off at the hospital to have their first baby, and then driving over to play 18 holes of golf during the event?

On the following week-ends he was also out playing golf when friends drove from distant cities to see the baby. He said having this baby made him the happiest man alive. Sign me...

WONDERING IN HOUSTON

DEAR WONDERING: You have a right to be teed off, trapped by a hacker like that. I'd say that your husband's conduct was below par, especially while the baby was being born.

DEAR ABBY: Please help me. I am so depressed. I am 36 years old and have always thought I had average intelligence, but now I am beginning to have my doubts.

I am a very good driver, but Abby, for some reason every time I sit down before an examining officer to take that written test, I can't seem to come up with the right answers.

I can't confide in my children (the youngest is 19) as they would think their mother is a first class idiot. (They all got their drivers' licenses on the first try.)

Abby, do you think there are some people who just shouldn't drive an automobile?

DEAR DEPRESSED: Yes, but you may not be one of them. Try again. Ask your husband to drill you on the written material that most motor vehicle departments provide. Don't be ashamed that you failed three times. Lots of drivers (and good ones, too) freeze on the paper work.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MRS. J.: The child who is adopted because a couple had one of "their own" and wanted a "playmate for Johnny," or "a sister for Mary," is casting their adopted child in a most difficult role. Adopt a child because you want a child.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69706.

Los Angeles, Cal. 90068 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for Abby's NEW BOOK, "WHAT TEEN-AGERS WANT TO KNOW." SEND $1.00 TO ABBY, BOX 69706, LOS ANGELES, CAL. 90068. (©1968 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.)

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, JUNE 3, 1968

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Work week off to a good start, but you seem determined to achieve goal just out of reach. Best to follow pattern, complete basic tasks. Then you get clearer view and act in fruitful way.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Good lunar aspect highlights pleasure through creative efforts. You accomplish. You feel you have achieved something solid. You are stimulated by compliment from unusual person.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Complete plans which improve residence, domestic situation. Keep long-range goal in view. Don't waste money by premature start. Fish moves. Sharpen sense of timing. Don't carry another's burden.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Find out the way of statements, events. Give full play to intellectual curiosity. Journey could prove pleasant. Live up to obligations, especially where relatives are concerned.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Hunch pays off. Your intuition serves as reliable guide. Lunar accent on possessions, income potential. Definite gain shown. You are aided by one who teaches.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Desires fulfilled through inventive, original action. Take the lead, initiative. One who is envious may try to discourage you. Be gracious, but don't be dissuaded. You are on the right track.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Look before you leap is more than a cliché today. Something is happening around the corner, behind the scenes. Take nothing for granted. You gain by noting possible oversights of others.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Pleasure gained by being with one who shares interests. Fine for breaking routine, dining out. Be open to suggestions. Hear varying shades of opinion. You could gain new ally.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent on opportunity to elevate standing. Prestige gained if you balance efforts. Means-avoid extremes. Communicate with one in authority. You are in better position than you might imagine.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Good lunar aspect today coincides with ability to articulate inner moods, thoughts. Take notes. Plan for future. Find out what it is you really need — then aim accordingly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Money question best resolved by agreement with mate, partner. Emphasis on hidden matters. Obtain hint from LIBRA message. Nothing halfway today. Study relationships. Choose the best.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You can reach constructive agreement which aids legal status. Be thorough. Enhance public relations. Be sure your position is clear. Avoid tendency to skip essential details.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you possess fine sense of humor: you are versatile; attract to photography and teaching. Current cycle indicates domestic adjustment.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for VIRGO. LIBRA, SCORPIO. Special word to ARIES: live up to recent health resolutions. (To find out who's lucky for you in money and love, order Sydney Omarr's booklet, "Secret Hints for Men and Women." We could discuss the bidding of today's hand for hours and still have more to say. South overbid a trifle when he pushed to the slam but we can't blame him much. Perhaps North should have bid three no-trump instead of three hearts. In that case South could have bid four no-trump as a no-trump raise instead of a Blackwood request for slam. The hand would have played at four no-trump and there would have been no column.

South looked over the dummy and saw that he needed the club finesse if he wanted to make six no-trump. Therefore he won the spade lead with dummy's ace and took that trick. It worked and South was ready for the next step. He cashed a high club to see if the queen would drop. It didn't so he went after hearts. There would always be time to get back to the clubs.

All this had taken enough time for East to visualize South's whole problem. East was sure that South held the king of spades. Obviously South was counting on three spades and two diamonds and would need seven tricks in hearts and clubs.

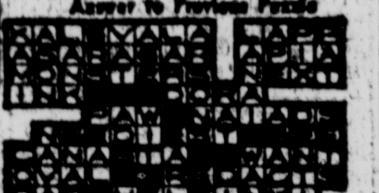

Assuming that South had 2-3-5 distribution it would be a give-up play for East; to take his ace of hearts right away, so East ducked.

Of course, East had done all this thinking early. Had he gone into a deep trance before ducking South would have known where the ace was. South returned to his hand with the king of spades and led a second heart. East ducked for the second time and South had to think again.

A third heart lead would drop the ace but South could not see his opponents' hand. He decided that hearts would not break but clubs would, so he came to his hand with the king of diamonds, led out his last high club, and lost his slam.

I can't confide in my children (the youngest is 19) as they would think their mother is a first class idiot. (They all got their drivers' licenses on the first try.)

Abby, do you think there are some people who just shouldn't drive an automobile?

DEPRESSED: Yes, but you may not be one of them. Try again. Ask your husband to drill you on the written material that most motor vehicle departments provide. Don't be ashamed that you failed three times. Lots of drivers (and good ones, too) freeze on the paper work.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MRS. J.: The child who is adopted because a couple had one of "their own" and wanted a "playmate for Johnny," or "a sister for Mary," is casting their adopted child in a most difficult role. Adopt a child because you want a child.

We could discuss the bidding of today's hand for hours and still have more to say. South overbid a trifle when he pushed to the slam but we can't blame him much. Perhaps North should have bid three no-trump instead of three hearts. In that case South could have bid four no-trump as a no-trump raise instead of a Blackwood request for slam. The hand would have played at four no-trump and there would have been no column.

South looked over the dummy

and saw that he needed the club finesse if he wanted to make six no-trump. Therefore he won the spade lead with dummy's ace and took that finesse. It worked and South was ready for the next step. He cashed a high club to see if the queen would drop. It didn't, so he went after hearts. There would always be time to get back to the clubs.

All this had taken enough time for East to visualize South's whole problem. East was sure that South held the king of spades. Obviously South was counting on three spades and two diamonds and would need seven tricks in hearts and clubs.

Assuming that South had 12-15 distribution it would be a give-up play for East to take his ace of hearts right away, so East ducked.

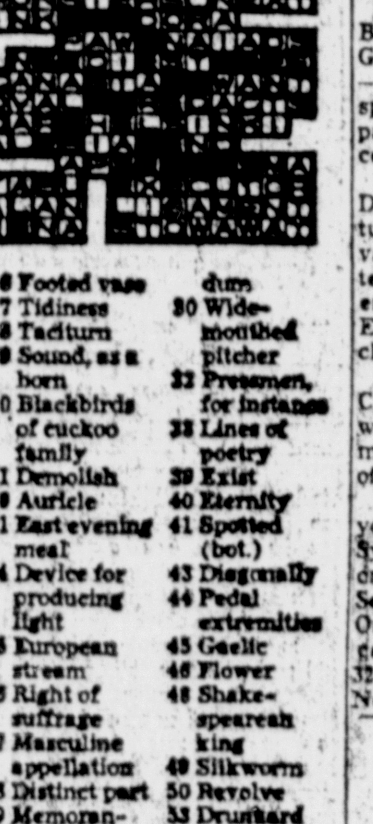

Of course, East had done all this thinking early. Had he gone into a deep trance before ducking South would have known where the ace was. South returned to his hand with the king of spades and led a second heart. East ducked for the second time and South had to think again.

A third heart lead would drop the ace but South could not see his opponents' hands. He decided that hearts would not break but clubs would, so he came to his hand with the king of diamonds, led out his last high club, and lost his slam.

The two new employees, being trained as gas repairmen by the public works department, were told that some fumes were innocuous, others lethal. The young man, trying to convince her small son that the bitter-tasting medicine was really innocuous, said she would taste it first.

The experienced chemist, who did not believe the new pills were innocuous, spent many long hours in the laboratory, trying to prove they were really harmful.

'Julia' Controversy Erupts

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The most talked-about series of the new television season is a situation comedy called "Julia." The reason for the talk is that the series will concern a young Negro woman, played by singer Diahann Carroll.

The show is still four months away from its premiere, and only the pilot has been filmed. But already it is the cause of controversy. In a Saturday Review article titled "Julia: Breakthrough or Let Down?" Robert Lewis Shayon criticized the project for failing to deal with the "two target groups in America life—Negro youth and Negro men."

Shayon pointed out that the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders reported that unemployment is not a problem with Negro women; the real problem is Negro youth "justified in the jungle" of their "crime-ridden, violence-prone and poverty-stricken world, many of them deprived of the presence of the 'solid citizen' father."

"The Negro female accommodates to the white power structure; the Negro male is aggressive in his demands for responsibility, and such aggression would hardly be welcome in a TV series," said the writer.

Miss Carroll was recently in

'Julia' Controversy Erupts

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The most talked-about series of the new television season is a situation comedy called "Julia." The reason for the talk is that the series will concern a young Negro woman, played by singer Diann Carroll.

The show is still four months away from its premiere, and only the pilot has been filmed. But already it is the cause of controversy. In a Saturday Review article titled "Julia: Breakthrough or Let Down?" Robert Lewis Shayon criticized the project for failing to deal with the "two target groups in America: life—Negro youth and Negro men."

Shayon pointed out that the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders reported that unemployment is not a problem with Negro women; the real problem is Negro youth "hustling in the jungle" of their "crime-ridden, violence-prone and poverty-stricken world, many of them deprived of the presence of the 'solid citizen' father."

"The Negro female accommodates to the white power structure; the Negro male is aggressive in his demands for responsibility, and such aggression would hardly be welcome in a TV series," said the writer.

Miss Carroll was recently in Hollywood briefly to hunt for a home before starting the NBC series, which was created and produced by Hal Kanter for 20th Century-Fox. She was scornful of the Shayon article.

"I'm sure if I were to review a book he wrote, I would read it first," she commented. "I would think that he might give us the courtesy of seeing our show before he criticized it."

Diann Carroll is obviously not a person to dodge controversy. Despite her odd name ("I still don't know where my mother got it," she exclaims), she was born and reared in the Bronx and has experienced all the knocks that big-city living can give to members of a minority race.

Despite her intense concern with the civil rights movement, she feels that "Julia" should not necessarily be devoted to Negro aspirations.

"We're dealing with an entertainment medium," she remarked. "Julia" is a drama-comedy; it isn't politically oriented. Because I am black, that doesn't mean I have to deal with the problems of all black people. That's not my sole responsibility."

In the series Miss Carroll will portray Julia Baker, a young nurse whose father's husband has recently been killed in Vietnam action. She has a young son, and they go to live in a pleasant, predominantly white apartment building. Julia is employed as an assistant to a doctor, played by Lloyd Nolan, at a space plank.

The series will not ignore the fact that she is black, Miss Carroll said, but the matter will be dealt with in a humorous way.

For instance, the white boy with whom her son plays remarks in the pilot film, "Hey—you mother's colored?" "Yeah, so am I," says her son. "You are?" says the other boy.

In another scene she informs Nolan over the telephone that she is a Negro. "Have you always been colored or are you just trying to be fashionable?" he asks.

Even though "Julia" is not aimed at solving problems, Miss Carroll believes that it can accomplish some good.

"I think familiarly to help relations between the races," she said. "We live in a segregated society, and the white people have no notion of how Negroes live. Anything that brings the unknown into the white community is bound to do some good."

City Beat

By HUGH REYNOLDS
Freeman City Hall Reporter

WE'RE NOT about to pound the drum for Bobby Kennedy but it would appear that the city committee's failure to endorse him showed a lack of political horse sense.

The fact is, Senator Kennedy, whether he wins or not, is still the highest elected Democrat in the state and the leader of the state Democratic Committee. Anyone who doesn't think so has to look back on Eugene Nickerson's 24-hour nomination against Joe Resnick for U.S. senator.

The City Committee however, took a overly cautious tact at two separate meetings. The first time they adjourned and avoided the question entirely. The second time they did about the same thing—voting to endorse whomever wins the nomination in Chicago. They even voted to send their delegation to Chicago uncommitted, presumably to sit there and sniff the wind.

SOME OF THE KENNEDY supporters got pretty hot after their most recent defeat a week ago Thursday. Charges of gutless so and so's were heard. One wag even suggested that the city committee wait until the elections in November and if a Republican wins, endorse him.

We've noticed that most of the Kennedy supporters in the city committee are of the younger set. They want a stand taken. Perhaps the older members have been living too long with the theory that the best stand is no stand.

JOHN NACCARATO, running for alderman in the new Eighth Ward, got off one of the first shots of this year's aldermanic campaign but not against his opponent, Emilio Primo. John blasted Cliff Sinsabaugh who is currently grumbling about the landfill project in his (the tenth) ward.

Sinsabaugh's charges are well documented and include odor, burning and debris all over the place. Naccarato says Kingston's landfill project is one of the best in the state and that Sinsabaugh is merely exercising his lungs for the benefit of the voters.

HALLMARKS—It looks like it'll be a cool summer for Kingston cops, in their cars at any rate. The city has plans to buy seven new cars with airconditioning for the men in blue. As we understand it, the coolers are thrown in at no extra cost. Total bill should be about $15,000.

GARRAGHAN yanking his hair out nowadays (so what's new). First of all, he's negotiating with the firemen on a wage package and those guys are no pushovers. Next, he's concerned about that cigarette-newspaper stand Larry Giustino has in city hall. Ray doesn't object to Larry being there. He just doesn't want the city to have to pick up the tab if Larry, who's blind, injures himself or someone else accidentally. Finally, on a more somber note, Ray's son, Abel is back in the hospital (Benedictine) with his bad back. That operation he underwent in Albany apparently didn't take. However, Ray has high hopes that with rest and proper care, Abel will respond.

New Leaders Emerge In Poor Campaign

By MALCOLM BARR

WASHINGTON (AP) — The emergence of new leaders in the Poor People's Campaign has been accompanied by statements that the demonstrators will accelerate their protests in the halls of Congress and government buildings.

"We are shifting gears and making changes," said the Rev. Andrew Young, executive vice president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, which organized Resurrection City, the shantytown encampment near the Lincoln Memorial.

"It is time the main focus of action should shift from Resurrection City to Washington, D.C. . . to Congress and the government agencies," Young said Friday.

In the absence of SCLC President Ralph David Abernathy, out of town for the day, Young said Hosea Williams would now spearhead demonstrations.

New Demonstrations

Two new figures who led a demonstration Friday at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare were J. T. Johnson and Leon Hall. Like Williams, they are laymen. Previously the prominent figures in the campaign were clergymen.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson, who led some demonstrations in the last two weeks, was relieved as "city manager" of Resurrection City. No replacement was announced.

Young said Jackson will recruit new demonstrators in large Northern and Southern cities who would move into the encampment if Congress tried to oust the 2,000 or so now living there. The eventual goal is to have 3,000 persons encamped in the A-frame huts.

"In case those crazy folk in Congress try to run us out, we want to make sure we have another 3,000 people ready to come in," Young said.

About 500 demonstrators marched on the Department of Health, Education and Welfare Friday.

Sought Personal Attention — They threatened a sit-in unless Secretary Wilbur J. Cohen personally answered their demands.

Cohen's eventual appearance drew cheers, and the demonstrators listened while he spoke and handed a 35-page document to Williams which he said was a government answer to an "economic bill of rights" recently demanded by the Rev. Mr. Abernathy. Cohen said Abernathy had made some good points in his demands for improved government programs for the needy.

Friday clear weather helped dry up the ankle-deep mud in Resurrection City.

The campers resumed building the plywood shanties for the first time since heavy rain turned the campsite into a quagmire a week ago.

Allied Forces in Rugged House-to-House Fighting

By JACK WALSH

SAIGON (UPI)—Allied forces today battled house to house against at least 1,000 Viet Cong staging their third invasion of Saigon in five months.

Nearly 500 guerrillas have been killed since the Viet Cong sent infiltrator bands into the capital six days ago, But spokesmen said today's fighting mushroomed into major combat with the Viet Cong entrenched in two sectors, one a 10-block area in the heavily Chinese Cholon area.

The battling had not—as yet—reached the six days of the fighting in February and May when tens of thousands of guerrillas and North Vietnamese troops were thrown against Saigon.

In other developments, South Vietnamese troops freed two U.S. Marines captured two months ago by the Viet Cong near the city of Hue, 380 miles north of Saigon. Also today, U.S. jets and artillery knocked out two Soviet-made 100mm guns just 48 hours after the big guns opened fire against a Central Highlands American base. It had been the first time such large Communist guns had been used so far south of North Vietnam.

In Saigon's Cholon area, UPI correspondent Roger Norum reported automatic weapon fire ripping into the walls of buildings riddled in previous antiguerrilla street fighting.

The Viet Cong bands made houses into fortresses, firing from second floor windows when surrounded, they would try to dash to another house for a new stand. The red units made jack-in-the-box attacks repeatedly. A captured Viet Cong told allied intelligence their commanders wanted to harass the allied forces in the capital to win propaganda points for the North Vietnamese diplomats meeting U.S. officials in Paris in preliminary Vietnam peace talks.

A U.S. Army correspondent in

Cholon said he saw Viet Cong snipers fire into a group of South Vietnamese Boy Scouts doing Red Cross work.

He said the boys had been carrying a Red Cross flag, following the government troops and treating civilians caught in harm's way. The Army correspondent said one of the boys was killed. Another fell. Most fled back, unhurt.

More than 1,000 civilians streamed from Cholon buildings where small businesses were run from the ground floor and families lived on the second and third floors.

Near the bridge, there were fewer houses but more and larger guerrilla units. The Reds appeared trying to cut road traffic between Saigon and the big allied bases just to the north. U.S. intelligence sources said at least 800 Viet Cong were on the northwest city limits or just outside.

McCarthy, Kennedy Take to Airwaves

By United Press International

Sens. Eugene J. McCarthy and Robert F. Kennedy take their increasingly abrasive rivalry for the presidential nomination on to national television tonight, but McCarthy says they'll probably end up sitting around being nice to each other.

With the key California primary just three days away, both Kennedy and McCarthy have stepped up their personal attacks on each other.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, the front runner in the three-way Democratic race, declined to appear on the one-hour ABC special (to be broadcast at 9:30 p.m., EDT).

McCarthy was unhappy over the program's format which will not permit either candidate to offer rebuttals to remarks by the other.

"They're not setting up a debate," McCarthy complained. "We're going to sit around and be nice to each other, the way they're setting it up."

Earlier, the Minnesota senator said he was tired of statements by the Kennedy forces that McCarthy would drop out of the race. He also said Kennedy's statements that the New Yorker would withdraw if he lost in California were "like saying I'm going to hold my breath if you don't vote for me."

Increasingly Critical — Kennedy, in San Francisco, was increasingly critical of McCarthy. He accused McCarthy advertisements of distorting the New York senator's record on the Vietnam War and U.S. intervention in the Dominican Republic.

"It is a campaign to distort and to stop me," Kennedy said. "I do resent the distortion of the record. It demeans politics."

In other political developments: Richard M. Nixon—the former vice president met in Atlanta with Republican chairmen from 12 Southern states but said he was not dangling "plums" because he wanted to go into the convention "free and clear."

At a news conference, he said he could not see any close opposition "right on the horizon" for the GOP nomination.

California—The Mervyn Field Poll said Friday that Gov. Ronald Reagan's popularity with California voters had dropped sharply over the past year. The survey found Reagan's performance rating down almost to the level of former Gov. Edmund G. Brown, whom Reagan defeated for the governorship during the closing months of Brown's administration.

Reagan is the only Republican contender on Tuesday's presidential primary ballot.

Predict House Fight On Equal Time Bill

By ROBERT A. HUNT

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House fight looms over a plan to suspend equal-time provisions of television-radio law for the 1968 presidential campaign.

The Senate, without dissent, has cleared a resolution to authorize the temporary suspension. Under this plan, the Republican and Democratic presidential nominees, along with third-party candidate George C. Wallace, would be able to debate without networks and stations being required to give equal time to splinter candidates with relatively insignificant support.

"I will certainly do whatever I can to prevent it," said Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., ranking Democrat on a House subcommittee considering the plan. "And I think there is substantial support for my point of view."

The Senate-adopted resolution would suspend the equal-time requirements for major presidential and vice presidential candidates from Aug. 31—after the national conventions—through Election Day.

Equal time provisions require that when a radio or television station permits a legally qualified candidate for public office to make use of its facilities, equal opportunities must be provided for all other candidates competing for the same office.

Moss, who pledged to carry his fight to the House floor if necessary, said networks have used the 1960 experience as a lever to try and bring about total repeal of the equal-time provisions.

"This is a quadrennial spectacular," Moss said. "They are trying to create a grand show and I don't think they are doing it merely to inform."

City Beat

By HUGH REYNOLDS
Freeman City Hall Reporter

WE'RE NOT about to pound the drum for Bobby Kennedy but it would appear that the city committee's failure to endorse him showed a lack of political horse sense.

The fact is, Senator Kennedy, whether he wins or not, is still the highest elected Democrat in the state and the leader of the state Democratic Committee. Anyone who doesn't think so has to look back on Eugene Nickerson's 24-hour nomination against Joe Resnick for U.S. senator.

The City Committee however, took a overly cautious tact at two separate meetings. The first time they adjourned and avoided the question entirely. The second time they did about the same thing—voting to endorse whomever wins the nomination in Chicago. They even voted to send their delegation to Chicago uncommitted, presumably to sit there and sniff the wind.

SOME OF THE KENNEDY supporters got pretty hot after their most recent defeat a week ago Thursday. Charges of gutless so and so's were heard. One wag even suggested that the city committee wait until the elections in November and if a Republican wins, endorse him.

We've noticed that most of the Kennedy supporters in the city committee are of the younger set. They want a stand taken. Perhaps the older members have been living too long with the theory that the best stand is no stand.

JOHN NACCARATO, running for alderman in the new Eighth Ward, got off one of the first shots of this year's aldermanic campaign but not against his opponent, Emilio Primo. John blasted Cliff Sinsabaugh who is currently grumbling about the landfill project in his (the new tenth) ward.

Sinsabaugh's charges are well documented and include odor, burning and debris all over the place. Naccarato says Kingston's landfill project is one of the best in the state and that Sinsabaugh is merely exercising his lungs for the benefit of the voters.

HALLMARKS—It looks like it'll be a cool summer for Kingston cops, in their cars at any rate. The city has plans to buy seven new cars with airconditioning for the men in blue. As we understand it, the coolers are thrown in at no extra cost. Total bill should be about $15,000.

GARRAGHAN yanking his hair out nowadays (so what's new). First of all, he's negotiating with the firemen on a wage package and those guys are no pushovers. Next, he's concerned about that cigarette-newspaper stand Larry Giustino has in city hall. Ray doesn't object to Larry being there. He just doesn't want the city to have to pick up the tab if Larry, who's blind, injures himself or some one else accidentally. Finally, on a more somber note, Ray's son, Abel is back in the hospital (Benedictine) with his bad back. That operation he underwent in Albany apparently didn't take. However, Ray has high hopes that with rest and proper care, Abel will respond.

New Leaders Emerge In Poor Campaign

By MALCOLM BARR

WASHINGTON (AP) — The emergence of new leaders in the Poor People's Campaign has been accompanied by statements that the demonstrators will accelerate their protests in the halls of Congress and government buildings.

"We are shifting gears and making changes," said the Rev. Andrew Young, executive vice president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, which organized Resurrection City, the shantytown encampment near the Lincoln Memorial.

"It is time the main focus of action should shift from Resurrection City to Washington, D.C., to Congress and the government agencies," Young said Friday.

In the absence of SCLC President Ralph David Abernathy,

New Demonstrations

Two new figures who led a demonstration Friday at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare were J. T. Johnson and Leon Hall. Like Williams, they are laymen. Previously the prominent figures in the campaign were clergymen.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson, who led some demonstrations in the last two weeks, was relieved as "city manager" of Resurrection City. No replacement was announced.

Young said Jackson will recruit new demonstrators in large Northern and Southern cities who would move into the encampment if Congress tried to oust the 2,000 or so now living there. The eventual goal is to have 3,000 persons encamped in the A-frame huts.

"In case those crazy folk in Congress try to run us out, we want to make sure we have another, 3,000 people ready to come in," Young said. About 500 demonstrators marched on the Department of Health, Education and Welfare Friday.

Sought Personal Attention They threatened a sit-in unless Secretary Wilbur J. Cohen personally answered their demands.

Cohen's eventual appearance drew cheers, and the demonstrators listened while he spoke and handed a 35-page document to Williams which he said was a government answer to an "economic bill of rights" recently demanded by the Rev. Mr. Abernathy. Cohen said Abernathy had made some good points in his demands for improved government programs for the needy.

Friday clear weather helped dry up the ankle-deep mud in Resurrection City.

The campers resumed building the plywood shanties for the first time since heavy rain turned the campsite into a quagmire a week ago.

By JACK WALSH

SAIGON (UPI)—Allied forces today battled house to house against at least 1,000 Viet Cong staging their third invasion of Saigon in five months.

Nearly 500 guerrillas have been killed since the Viet Cong sent infiltrator bands into the capital six days ago. But spokesmen said today's fighting mushroomed into major combat with the Viet Cong entrenched in two sectors, one a 10-block area in the heavily Chinese Cholon area.

The battling had not—as yet—reached the six days of the fighting in February and May when tens of thousands of guerrillas and North Vietnamese troops were thrown against Saigon.

In other developments, South Vietnamese troops freed two U.S. Marines captured two months ago by the Viet Cong near the city of Hue, 380 miles north of Saigon. Also today, U.S. jets and artillery knocked out 48 hours after the big guns opened fire against a Central Highlands American base. It had been the first time such large Communist guns had been used so far south of North Vietnam.

In Saigon's Cholon area, UPI correspondent Roger Norum reported automatic weapon fire ripping into the walls of buildings riddled in previous antiguerrilla street fighting.

The Viet Cong bands made houses into fortresses, firing from second floor windows when surrounded, they would try to dash to another house for a new stand. The red units made jam-in-the-box attacks repeatedly. A captured Viet Cong told allied intelligence their commanders wanted to harass the allied forces in the capital to win propaganda points for the North Vietnamese diplomats meeting U.S. officials in Paris in preliminary Vietnam peace talks.

A U.S. Army correspondent in

Cholon said he saw Viet Cong snipers fire into a group of South Vietnamese Boy Scouts doing Red Cross work.

He said the boys had been carrying a Red Cross flag, following the government troops and treating civilians caught in harm's way. The Army correspondent said one of the boys was killed. Another fell. Most fled back, unhurt.

More than 1,000 civilians streamed from Cholon buildings where small businesses were run from the ground floor and families lived on the second and third floors.

Near the bridge, there were fewer houses but more and larger guerrilla units. The Reds appeared trying to cut road traffic between Saigon and the big allied bases just to the north. U.S. intelligence sources said at least 800 Viet Cong were on the northwest city limits or just outside.

McCarthy, Kennedy Take to Airwaves

By United Press International
Sens. Eugene J. McCarthy and Robert F. Kennedy take their increasingly abrasive rivalry for the presidential nomination on to national television tonight, but McCarthy says they'll probably end up sitting around being nice to each other.

With the key California primary just three days away, both Kennedy and McCarthy have stepped up their personal attacks on each other.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, the front runner in the three-way Democratic race, declined to appear on the one-hour ABC special (to be broadcast at 9:30 p.m., EDT).

McCarthy was unhappy over the program's format which will not permit either candidate to offer rebuttals to remarks by the other.

"They're not setting up a debate," McCarthy complained. "We're going to sit around and be nice to each other, the way they're setting it up."

Earlier, the Minnesota senator said he was tired of statements by the Kennedy forces that McCarthy would drop out of the race. He also said Kennedy's statements that the New Yorker would withdraw if he lost in California were "like saying I'm going to hold my breath if you don't vote for me."

Increasingly Critical Kennedy, in San Francisco, was increasingly critical of McCarthy. He accused McCarthy advertisements of distorting the New Yorker's record on the Vietnam War and U.S. intervention in the Dominican Republic.

"It is a campaign to distort and to stop me," Kennedy said. "I do resent the distortion of the record. It demeans politics."

In other political developments: Richard M. Nixon—the former vice president met in Atlanta with Republican chairmen from 12 Southern states but said he was not dangle "plums" because he wanted to go into the convention "free and clear." At a news conference, he said he could not see any close opposition "right on the horizon" for the GOP nomination.

California—The Mervyn Field Poll said Friday that Gov. Ronald Reagan's popularity

with California voters had dropped sharply over the past year. The survey found Reagan's performance rating down almost to the level of former Gov. Edmund G. Brown, whom Reagan defeated for the governorship, during the closing months of Brown's administration.

Polls—Rep. Clarence D. Long, D-Md., said he has introduced a "truth in polling" bill to guard against fixing public opinion polls.

A Walk in History...A Boat Ride Treat

The Warner House on Constitution island near West Point is now open for visitors every Wednesday until October 2, and on Sunday, July 21, August 18, and September 8. Furnishings in the house are 19th century Warner family heirlooms. Reservations are required to insure adequate boat transportation. The boat leaves South Dock at West Point at 1 and 2 p.m. returning at 3 and 4 p.m. Donations are minimal for adults and children. For more information and reservations write to the Constitution Island Association, Box 41, West Point, N.Y. 10996.

Constitution Island is part of the reservation of the United States Military Academy. It was given to the Government in 1908 by Miss Anna Warner and Mrs. Russell Sage. This island had been the home of the Warner family since 1836 when they purchased it from Samuel Gouverneur. Gouverneur had inherited the island which was a part of the land grant given to the Philipse family by the British Crown before the American Revolutionary War.

A visit to Constitution Island and the Warner House takes tourists back in history. There one can see some of the ruins of Revolutionary War fortifications and the site where the famous "chain" was attached to prevent the British from sailing up the Hudson River in 1778.

Hostesses from the Constitution Island Association tell visitors the historical highlights of the island and guide them through the 19th century home of the Warners. There one can see a copy of the Gilbert Stuart painting of George Washington which the Warners willed to the Corps of Cadets, and the melodian which the Warners used to accompany hymn singing. Anna Warner wrote the famed hymn "Jesus Loves Me" in 1860.

The Warner sisters were called the Bronte sisters of America and together they wrote more than 70 books. The most famous was "Wide, Wide World" published in 1850 and was second in sales only to "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Boat Ride Treat

The boat ride on the Hudson from West Point to the Island is another part of the treat for those who visit this peaceful, unspoiled island home. The Constitution Island Association maintains the displays in the Warner House and arranges the guided tours.

The Constitution Island Association was founded in 1916 and membership is open to any interested person. Membership privileges include the opportunity to help support a unique remnant of Hudson River history and beauty. Members receive invitations to the annual meeting on the island, to the annual historical lectures on local history subjects and are given an annual report. Members of the Association are urged to work on the educational program of the Association which is conducted to stimulate interest in the historical role of the island and the cultural contribution of the Warner family to the Hudson River Valley.

Amusement Park Added to Area Fair Grounds

The newest additions to the Orange County Fair Grounds, an 18 hole miniature golf course and 10 exciting amusement rides — will make their public debut in mid-June. The new entertainment center, named Fair Grounds Amusement Park, will officially open at 8 p.m., Friday, June 14.

"We are aiming at creating a summer-long fun-for-the-entire-family entertainment center at the Orange County Fair Grounds," said Al Howard, president and general manager of the park. "We hope to provide a wholesome fun atmosphere as well as a series of special attractions throughout the summer. This will be a place where teen-agers can get together and have something to do or see. We believe the summer-long amusement center will be a worthwhile addition to camp or day camp programs, as well as a pleasant place for parents to bring their youngsters."

The miniature golf course has been designed and landscaped, not only to provide a challenging game, Howard said, but also as an area of "relaxation and beauty." As the shrubbery, floral plantings, and trees develop, an outstanding display will provide pleasure to the beholder as well as the player."

Amusement rides include The Wild Mouse, The Kiddie Coaster, 4 Unit Flying Cages, The Flying Tigers, Train Ride, Wet Boat Ride, Midget Racer, Paratrooper Ride, the Junior Hot Rod or Bat Mobile, and, of course, the always popular Carousel.

The park will be open regularly from 2 p.m. Friday, from 12 noon-Saturday, and from 1 p.m. Sunday, during June. A summer schedule will be announced at a later date.

The amusement and golf area will be open throughout the evening hours, with attractive, powerful lighting which formerly graced the New York World's Fair.

The Orange County Fair Grounds at Middletown also offer exciting stock car races every Saturday night at 8 p.m. at the O.C.F. Speedway. A motorcycle thriller is scheduled for Sunday, afternoon, June 9. On Sunday, June 16, the Speedway will feature a Twilight Double-Header, beginning at 6 p.m. with both the ARDC mid-gets and URC sprint cars scheduled to appear.

On Friday evening, June 21, the Fair Grounds Stadium will resound to country-western music featuring Hank Snow and Johnny Dollar.

Irish Spectacle at Old Aerodrome

An unusual spectacle will take place Sunday, June 2, in Rhinebeck when the Pipes and Drums Band of Albany's Ancient Order of Hibernians performs on the grassy runways of the Old Rhinebeck Aerodrome.

The band will perform during a tribute to World War I Irish Flying Ace Captain George McElroy, born at Donnybrook, near Dublin in 1893, and termed "one of the deadliest British fighter pilots of the war" with his score of 49 enemy planes shot down.

Captain McElroy survived two crashes in his Nieuport 17 bi-plane, one of which was particularly noteworthy. On July 20, 1918 while he was engaging two two-seaters over La Basse, France, a broken connecting rod in his engine set up such a vibration that the carburetor shook loose and caught fire. After a long dive failed to extinguish the flames, McElroy came down at Noeux les Mines, threw himself out as the plane touched down — and escaped with only scratches and bruises.

Mystery Death

Eleven days later McElroy took to the skies for the last time. He was never seen again, and how he met his death is to this day a mystery.

The Old Rhinebeck Aerodrome features a living museum of planes of the 1914-18 war, most in flying condition, and of special interest to aviation buffs is the reconstructed Fokker Triplane painted in the flying colors of Germany's ace, "Red

'Baron' Von Richtofen. This plane is flown by curator of the museum, Cole Palen, dressed in a uniform of the time, and engages in mock battle high over the airstrip with a British Sopwith Pup.

Flak explodes overhead and machine guns chatter as the "Red Baron" pursues his quarry, bringing him down in a cloud of black smoke during the exciting finale.

The Albany Pipe Band will open the show at 2 p.m. and will also take part in the air show. The field is located off US 9, two miles south of Red Hook on Stone Church Road. The field is open to the public daily, and air shows are featured on the first and last Sundays of the month, May through October.

Matinee, Anyone?

Applications are being accepted for next fall's Matinee Theater course to be offered by the Woman's Program of Orange County Community College. Participants in the class will attend five Broadway shows in New York City on Wednesday afternoons during the 1968-69 season. Cost for the course, including tickets and transportation, will be nominal. Interested persons may register and also indicate the shows they would like to attend by contacting Mrs. Marilyn Wheeler at the OCCC Woman's Program office, (914) DI 3-3311 in Middletown.

Summer's Art Season Debuts With Gala Outdoor Opening

IF THEY DO IT MOSTLY ON SUNDAYS in New York City, where some 250,000 art lovers converge on Manhattan galleries and museums each Sabbath, they do it Saturdays in the art colony of Woodstock. Combining an insatiable appetite for painting exhibitions in Ulster and Dutchess Counties. Busiest place in the area last Saturday afternoon was "The Studio" on Woodstock's Denning Street. Art lovers of all ages and in all manner of attire turned out for opening party at the rustically charming environs operated by artist Stefan Lokos. Whether they made the scene at the buffet table, took advantage of the wooden seats around the pool, gathered in small groups for conversation, or pored over the paintings, those who came made no bones about appreciating art. (Freeman photo by Haines).

The miniature golf course has been designed and landscaped, not only to provide a challenging game, Howard said, but also as an area of "relaxation and beauty." As the shrubbery, floral plantings, and trees develop, an outstanding display will provide pleasure to the beholder as well as the player."

Amusement rides include The Wild Mouse, The Kiddie Coaster, 4 Unit Flying Cages, The Flying Tigers, Train Ride, Wet Boat Ride, Midget Racer, Paratrooper Ride, the Junior Hot Rod or Bat Mobile, and, of course, the always popular Carousel.

The park will be open regularly from 2 p.m. Friday, from 12 noon-Saturday, and from 1 p.m. Sunday, during June. A summer schedule will be announced at a later date.

The amusement and golf area will be open throughout the evening hours, with attractive, powerful lighting which formerly graced the New York World's Fair.

The Orange County Fair Grounds at Middletown also offer exciting stock car races every Saturday night at 8 p.m. at the O.C.F. Speedway. A motorcycle thriller is scheduled for Sunday, afternoon, June 9. On Sunday, June 16, the Speedway will feature a Twilight Double-Header, beginning at 6 p.m. with both the ARDC mid-gets and URC sprint cars scheduled to appear.

On Friday evening, June 21, the Fair Grounds Stadium will resound to country-western music featuring Hank Snow and Johnny Dollar.

Irish Spectacle at Old Aerodrome

An unusual spectacle will take place Sunday, June 2, in Rhinebeck when the Pipes and Drums Band of Albany's Ancient Order of Hibernians performs on the grassy runways of the Old Rhinebeck Aerodrome.

The band will perform during a tribute to World War I Irish Flying Ace Captain George McElroy, born at Donnybrook, near Dublin in 1893, and termed "one of the deadliest British fighter pilots of the war" with his score of 49 enemy planes shot down.

Captain McElroy survived two crashes in his Nieuport 17 bi-plane, one of which was particularly noteworthy. On July 20, 1918 while he was engaging two two-seaters over La Basse, France, a broken connecting rod in his engine set up such a vibration that the carburetor shook loose and caught fire. After a long dive failed to extinguish the flames, McElroy came down at Noeuz les Mines, threw himself out as the plane touched down—and escaped with only scratches and bruises.

Mystery Death

Eleven days later McElroy took to the skies for the last time. He was never seen again, and how he met his death is to this day a mystery.

The Old Rhinebeck Aerodrome features a living museum of planes of the 1914-18 war, most in flying condition, and of special interest to aviation buffs is the reconstructed Fokker Tri-plane painted in the flying colors of Germany's ace, "Red

'Baron' Von Richtofen. This plane is flown by curator of the museum, Cole Palen, dressed in a uniform of the time, and engages in mock battle high over the airstrip with a British Sopwith Pup.

Flak explodes overhead and machine guns chatter as the "Red Baron" pursues his quarry, bringing him down in a cloud of black smoke during the exciting finale.

The Albany Pipe Band will open the show at 2 p.m. and will also take part in the air show. The field is located off US 9, two miles south of Red Hook on Stone Church Road. The field is open to the public daily, and air shows are featured on the first and last Sundays of the month, May through October.

Matinee, Anyone?

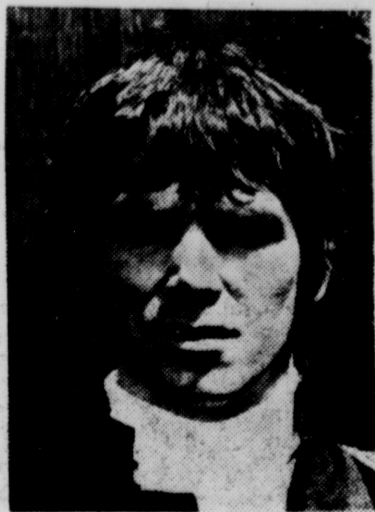

Applications are being accepted for next fall's Matinee Theater course to be offered by the Woman's Program of Orange County Community College. Participants in the class will attend five Broadway shows in New York City on Wednesday afternoons during the 1968-69 season. Cost for the course, including tickets and transportation, will be nominal. Interested persons may register and also indicate the shows they would like to attend by contacting Mrs. Marilyn Wheeler at the OCCC Woman's Program office, (914) DI 3-3311 in Middletown.

Summer's Art Season Debuts With Gala Outdoor Opening

IF THEY DO IT MOSTLY ON SUNDAYS in New York City, where some 250,000 art lovers converge on Manhattan galleries and museums each Sabbath, they do it Saturdays in the art colony of Woodstock. Combining an insatiable appetite for painting exhibitions in Ulster and Dutchess Counties. Busiest place in the area last Saturday afternoon was "The Studio" on Woodstock's Deming Street. Art lovers of all ages and in all manner of attire turned out for opening party at the rustically charming environs operated by artist Stefan Lokos. Whether they made the scene at the buffet table, took advantage of the wooden seats around the pool, gathered in small groups for conversation, or pored over the paintings, those who came made no bones about appreciating art. (Freeman photo by Haines).

Swinging News: The Union Gap Coming to Kingston

Swinging news for pop music fans — the UNION GAP will come out of the west for a spectacular concert appearance in Kingston. It'll mark the first time the highly popular group has appeared in person, and the record stars (whose group portrait looks like a daguerreotype straight out of a Yankee Civil War encampment) are expected to attract a sell-out crowd to the Kate Walton Field House here.

Local teenagers (and any parents within hearing distance of their offspring's phonograph) have been meeting the Union

Gap on Columbia records over the winter and spring. Their hit record, "Woman, Woman," took the nation's youth by storm early this year; soared to the top of the sales charts in short weeks. Currently, their "Young Girl" is enjoying brisk sales, proving to be a phenomenon in the trade.

Unquestionably, the Gap musicians are dynamic and talented performers in their own time. They attract concert crowds that cheer their every note. The Gap formed up out in San Deigo, California and, ever since, this fairly new group has been credited with generating that old animal magnetism on stage.

The lead voice belongs to Gary Puckett and the other members are Dwight Bement, Kerry Chater, Gary Withem and Paul Wheatbread. The five will take to the Kate Walton Field House stage on Friday, June 7 at 8 p. m. and the concert promises to be a one night stand in the big beat tradition. Puckett's guitar, Bement's tenor sax, Chater's bass guitar, Withem's woodwinds and piano, and Wheatbread's drum rolls will combine to play music for listening. If there's dancing in the aisles, it'll be impromptu and not on the program. The Gap is coming here to appear in concert and most fans will be more than happy to settle for the group's listenable beat. Local youngsters who will fill the Walton Field House to the rafters Friday night can thank the Kingston High School Key Club and the Kingston Kiwanis Club for this treat on a summer's evening. The two groups are cooperating in sponsoring the concert, similar to many the Gap has played in clubs and colleges all over the country.

Sounds like a MUST event for the younger generation and those adults who find the new sound not unattractive. Even if you own their singles and their just released first album, titled simply The Union Gap; even if you've seen them on TV, you'll want to be there in person when they swing into their hit songs Friday at the Field House.

Get those tickets before they are all gobbled up. They're now on sale through Key Club and Kiwanis members and at Abram's Music Center. Like they said at Gettysburg, CHARGE!

Buffet for Artists a Gourmet Spread

sociation. The dual session will be held at the Lathrop Memorial Auditorium, Holiday Hills, Pawling.

Guest demonstrator will be Helen Van Wyk, of New York's Grumbacher Company. An artist who has done much to establish the demonstration of painting as an art form in its own right, Miss Van Wyk believes the people "out there" in the audience are all-important. And at her demonstrations, she paints only for them. In the privacy of her studio, however, she is her own severest critic and paints some two dozen portrait commissions each year.

Helen Van Wyk's paintings have been exhibited at the National Academy, National Arts Club, Academic Artists and other nationally known galleries. She is also the author of "The Casselwyk Book on Oil Painting."

The DCAA dinner on June 21 will begin at 6:30 p.m. and the demonstration is set for 8:30 p.m. The dinner itself will be the usual, famous, fabulous, annual buffet spread. Tickets are available from C.E. Brandenburg, Box 232, Pawling, N.Y.

Curtain Ringing Down

The spring season of the Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre, housed in the Woodstock Playhouse, closes this weekend with the Sunday, June 2nd, performance of She Stoops to Conquer.

In saying adieu, TEMPO would like to point out that a repertory theatre such as HUVREP does not mushroom into another Stratford, Ontario overnight. Time, patience, and money are necessary for its successful development. And so it is very much to HUVREP's credit that it has achieved productions of such impressively high professional caliber. Reviewers-critics of the area have all praised the cohesiveness and growth of the company as a whole. HUVREP has also functioned successfully as an educational facility, providing, for example, student matinees — at reduced rates, which the Repertory this season underwrote itself!

HUVREP has achieved much in a short time, and its audiences for the spring season have grown appreciably closer to capacity. However, in order for HUVREP to further develop and realize its potential in the Hudson Valley, it needs more support, financial and moral. Currently, HUVREP is conducting a fund-raising campaign to bolster and secure its position. Why not let the Repertory know that you support its ambitions — even if all that is possible is a phone call or a letter.

The Final Two

And don't miss HUVREP's final performances of Oliver Goldsmith's comedy Sunday evening and Arthur Miller's great tragedy Death of a Salesman tonight. Goldsmith's She Stoops to Conquer is a farcical romp based on the confusion ensuing from mistaken identities, a situation deliberately arranged by one T. Lumpkin.

Goldsmith created some unforgettably funny characters, and the HUVREP acting company brings them fully to life. Tanny McDonald shines as the mischievous Kate Hardcastle, and Margaret Cathell is the other delicious young lady. Bill Ade is the delightfully devious Tony Lumpkin, and Bill Metz is a perplexed and sometimes pompous mis-guided suitor. Gene Nye is outstanding as the long-legged servant Diggory.

The other play, Arthur Miller's dramatic Death of a Salesman, is concerned with the failure of an "average American man." Salesman Willy Loman was after success, if not for himself, then for his sons. Even at the very end, he is really still seeking success, like the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow, even though he suspects it is forever elusive. Playwright Miller is also concerned with the relationship between father and son. How does a young man react when he discovers, under sordid circumstances, that his father is basically a phony? The dream-image of his despair. He grapples with his shattered. He is 34 before every moment as if preventing he is able to face reality and himself from going over a sheer cliff. John Swearingen as Biff is superb, his emotions true, revealing a single

Last Time Tonight

FRED MILLER is the disillusioned Willy Loman and Ann Driscoll is his wife in The Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre production of Arthur Miller's DEATH OF A SALESMAN. Tonight will be the last night audiences will be able to see this scene from the play in which the Lomans discuss their two sons on the stage of the Woodstock Playhouse. HUVREP's second season comes to a close with performances of "Salesman" tonight and a final curtain for Oliver Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer" tomorrow evening, June 2. (Photo by van Cort).

wife Linda with careworn pathos, an excellent foil to Willy's unsteadiness. Ed Holms appears briefly as the ghostly Ben, Willy's brother who walked into the jungle and found a fortune in diamonds.

SHOWBIZ by FLASH

"I watch television to escape reality!"

Television

The ratings go up every time he bares his fangs. If that sounds blood-chilling, it's also studio-warming and good news for daytime TV's first matinee idol in the grand manner. That would be actor Jonathan Frid, whose portrayal of a 172-year-old vampire, Barnabas Collins, in ABC's daytime Gothic serial, "Dark Shadows," has been rating raves from critics and viewers alike.

Ever since Frid joined the show back in the spring of 1967, the program's ratings have zoomed and his popularity has soared. Polls show an estimated 6-million viewers tune in Monday through Friday afternoon to watch the serial, which also stars Joan Bennett. What's its appeal? The acting is excellent, the plot scares the daylights out of people, and fans become rapidly addicted to its ghoulish antics. It's definitely a phenomenon.

A series of more than passing interest has been made possible by a $250,000 grant from a major corporation and it's slated to premiere Monday, June 3 at 8 p.m. on Channel 17. Titled "Men Who Teach," it will feature filmed portraits of six of the nation's most distinguished college professors. In so doing, it will allow the TV audience to encounter the personality and to sense the dedication of some of America's great university teachers.

The Long Search

Each program focuses on a different professor selected after extensive search among a representative cross-section of colleges in the country. Classrooms, laboratories, teachers at home and work, and assessments by students and colleagues will be presented. First show Monday night focuses on Gerald Holton, 46, Harvard University physics professor.

Whether you can train an old dog to do new tricks may be debatable, but there's no question you can give a TV special new footage. That's what happened to "It's a Dog's World," on NBC this coming Tuesday night.

Lorne Greene again narrates this story of man's best friend. The program proves, among other things, that dog owners talk to their pets and some swear the animals understand what they're saying. The program combines education with plenty of quiet chuckles: witness bathrobed, sleepy folk dog-walking in the city at 6 a.m., and pretty models earning extra money as professional dog-walkers. Definitely poignant are the scenes in which children select and adopt the puppies with whom they will grow up, and those which show the use of dogs in treating mentally disturbed youngsters.

Two for Us

Two other shows we're looking forward to this week:

RARE INSIDE PICTURE of multi-millionaire Haroldson Lafayette Hunt will return to Channel 17 Monday, June 3 at 9 p.m. on NET JOURNAL'S "H. L. Hunt: The Richest and the Rightest." Perhaps America's wealthiest man, Hunt is a big contributor to right-wing causes like "Life Line."

MEET JONATHAN FRID, known to millions of viewers as "Barnabas," resident vampire on ABC's afternooner, "Dark Shadows," the surprise daytime serial of 10, these many seasons. Many's the pretty young lady who's been exposed to that old vampire charm by Frid during his appearances as a hunter on the chiller-diller show. Goose-pimplish program is a long-time successful Gothic tale, ghost-to-ghost.

TV special on Channel 17 Tuesday, June 4 at 10 p.m. with teenagers from six big cities producing their own visual commentary on the cultural activities of their generation in their community. One example, for instance, is one youngster's use of "the new language" when he says, "Baltimore is a big dead fish, but my mother likes it here."

The other is the one which will have that most popular British TV personality, David Frost, talking with eight of the leading figures in the 1968 election campaign over Channel 5 this Sunday, June 2 at 8:30 p.m. Frost will hobnob with Eugene McCarthy, Hubert Humphrey, Robert Kennedy, Nelson Rockefeller, Richard Nixon, Ronald Reagan, Harold Stassen and George Wallace on the 90-minute color special, "The Next President?"

HAND ME DOWN THINGS: If you don't watch the Dick Cavett show, you miss some good lines. Personable Dick recently said he tried making some of Alice B. Toklas' marijuana fudge but it didn't turn out because "watched pot never boils." . . . Flip Wilson says he has a friend who's such a big coward that he's afraid of Don Knott's shadow. . . . Lucille STOKELEY CARMICHAEL, former director of SNCC, propounded his Black Power philosophy on NET Journal's "From Protest to Resistance," the hour-long documentary with a punch. Show, which followed the course of dissent in America was shown last Monday evening on Channel 17.

Ball is throwing out the successful formula for her top rated Lucy series; bringing in a whole new concept in which she is a widow with two teenage children. And she's taking her own kids, Luci and Desi, out of school and putting them in the show. Figures it's a good way to teach them self-discipline and keep them busy and out of trouble.

Among the programs TEMPO saw and liked during the past week was the Wide World of Sports coverage of London's Wembley Stadium Rugby Cup League Final. The niceties of the sport had always eluded us before, but this show's commentators explained the game's finer points to perfection. And the Saturday Night Movie on NBC was an excellent, creepy mystery. George C. Scott was superlative as the detective tracking down a mass assassin on "The List of Adrian Messenger." Since the film also had cameos of Burt Lancaster, Kirk Douglas, Tony Curtis, Robert Mitchum and Frank Sinatra, it was fun trying to spot them in their heavily-disguised make-up.

And Another Two

We also liked Leonard Bernstein as a quizmaster on The I.Y. Philharmonic Young People's Concerts last Sunday.

WHY WE SAY

UNKNOWN: A scientist who knew that he had discovered something great, but didn't know exactly what it was, coined this word. In 1895 Wilhelm Konrad Roentgen found a new form of radiation but he wasn't sure what it was—so he called it the unknown "x" or X ray.

PORTRAIT OF HAPPINESS—Kenny Kelliher, 5, and his newfound companion and bosom friend, a German shepherd puppy, make this classic portrait. The puppy was adopted from New York City's ASPCA adoption kennels, and the pair will be seen in "A Dog's World," hour-long repeat special with new footage, over NBC, Tuesday, June 4, 8-9 p.m.

"Quiz Concert: How Musical Are You?" was concerned with the musicality and awareness of the audience and it was rewarding fun to participate with all the family. And although we'd seen it before, we responded again to The Diary of Anne Frank, a TV adaptation with a fine performance from Diana Davila who made you feel she was that vibrant and voluble teenager who had lived a good life and brought her memories into her attic prison. The tragic story of Jews hiding from the Nazis in Holland was also helped by a superb characterization by Max von Sydow as Anne's father, and others by Lilli Palmer, Donald Pleasance, Viveca Lindfors and Theodore Bikel.

Best spot on a program for the whole week, as far as we're concerned, was Sammy Davis Jr. and Arte Johnson as twins behind the Iron Curtain singing "When the Saints Go Marching In," on Rowan and Martin's show.

BEST BETS FOR VIEWING in the week ahead should include the following:

Today, Sat., June 1

THE BELMONT STAKES (CBS, 5 p.m.). Most important running in the 100-year history of the nation's newest racing plant, mainly because of Forward Pass and the controversy over his Triple Crown win—if he should win.

WIDE WORLD OF SPORTS (ABC, 5 p.m.). It's live and it's The Champions' Track Meet, featuring every record holder in flat racing. Also seen: the National Air Races.

THE PRISONER (CBS, 7:30 p.m.). Patrick McGeehan, that Secret Agent man, returns as a man incarcerated in a remote and mysterious community by unknown captors. Heralded as a most intriguing series.

SATURDAY MOVIE (NBC, 8 p.m.). Cary Grant and Doris Day as a suave bachelor and a lovely blonde in the romance comedy "That Touch of Mink."

THE GREAT DEBATE (ABC, 9:30 p.m.). Long heralded, long awaited, it pits Sen. Eugene McCarthy against Sen. Robert Kennedy on the eve of the all-important California primary.

STRIKE ZION! (Channel 5, 10:30 p.m.). Documents the outbreak of the "Six-Day War" on the first anniversary of the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Sunday, June 2

THE TALK SHOWS give you Sen. Eugene McCarthy on Face the Nation at 12:30 on CBS, and Meet the Press has Dr. Grayson Kirk, president of Columbia University, at 1 p.m. on NBC.

ED SULLIVAN (CBS, 8 p.m.). Celebrating the 20th anniversary on TV of this durable show.

SUNDAY MOVIE (ABC, 9 p.m.). A flaring-nostril tale of love and passion, it's "Walk on the Wild Side" with Anne Baxter, Jane Fonda, Barbara Stanwyck and Laurence Harvey.

Monday, June 3

MEN WHO TEACH (Channel 17, 8 p.m.). Series of filmed portraits of six of the nation's most distinguished college professors.

Tuesday, June 4

REHEARSAL FOR D-DAY (ABC, 7:30 p.m.). Chronicle of the first major Allied attack against Fortress Europe at Dieppe in 1942.

CALIFORNIA PRIMARY will be covered by all three networks. NBC correspondents take over from 11 p.m. to 1 a.m., while ABC and CBS comment and ruminate from 11:30 p.m. to 12 midnight.

Wednesday, June 6

THE DATING GAME (ABC, 4 p.m.). Of local interest since Catskill photos will be shown. Pictures of a Catkill trip from a previous date should be familiar.

Friday, June 7

THE LODGER (Channels 13 & 17, 9 p.m.). The works of Georges Simenon, creator of the famed Inspector Maigret, form the basis of this BBC-produced series of psychological dramas. First in a series of 13 plays, tonight's story involves a young Turk who murdered for money: hides from the police in a small Belgian boarding house. Focus throughout the series is on one person—innocent or guilty—cut off from society by the act of murder. (T.G.)

Tugboat Memories

Dear Editor:
We have been following with interest the articles in TEMPO on historical events, places and people of local interest. The articles on Sojourner Truth, the Greenkill Inn and so on highlighted little known aspects of history. We had never heard of the Greenkill Inn either, although I knew that cottages of a by-gone era were still on the property in fairly recent years. And the stories of the research done in the last two years on historical homes and buildings was certainly interesting.

TEMPO, for May 18th, has a particularly sad series of pictures, those on the decline of local water activities. It seems too bad that the once bustling waterways and their shores are so quiet now, but that is progress.

Then mention of tugboats brought back many fond memories. I grew up in the village of Port Ewen and always loved village life and everything connected with the river. I was always looking to see what was moving on the river and knew many of the tugboats by name. At that time, most of the village men worked on the river. Each boat had its individual whistle and in the evening, as each approached the entrance to Rondout Creek, it would blow its whistle as it passed Port Ewen, a lovely sound in the quiet evening air. Thus, village residents could identify each boat and knew what men would be home soon.

One special memory is of the tugboat 'Rob' whose captain was John Lynn of Port Ewen. The 'Rob' was well-known in its day. One year a group of Port Ewen residents were invited on the 'Rob' for a trip down to Poughkeepsie to see the college shell races held every year at that time. My parents, brother and I were in this group.

I was just a small girl, but I remember being on the 'Rob,' seeing the gaily flag-festooned excursion trains packed with people 'parked' on the tracks of the West Shore Railroad to watch the races, boats of all descriptions and sizes all around the 'Rob' for miles up and down the river and the thrill of climbing a small iron ladder to Captain John's pilot-house. The 'Rob' has been gone for many years, but I will never forget it. I believe it was one of the tugboats and other craft allowed to rot into oblivion in the creek.

Keep up the good work. It will do today's hustling world no harm to stop and reflect for a few minutes on the events of a more leisurely era.

Tiny Turtle Invades Child

BOUNTIFUL, Utah (UPI)—Brad Haines, 2, and his pet turtle Myrtle may soon be parted—to the joy of all concerned.

Doctors said Friday X-rays of Brad's stomach failed to spot the dime store turtle which caused him to lose two nights of sleep, put him on a liquid diet, and gave his parents a $400 headache.

Brad swallowed Myrtle the turtle Tuesday and the reptile, which doctors believed was alive at least two days later, lodged in his intestines. It later moved up into the tot's stomach but by Friday had disappeared from the X-rays.

"That darling little dime store turtle is going to cost us about $400," said Brad's mother, Mrs. Russell Haines. "I didn't know they were worth that much..."

Doctors at the South Davis Medical Center here hoped stomach acids would kill the turtle and the youngster would pass it normally. An operation, first contemplated for Friday, was postponed until at least "the first of the week."

Brad, who normally eats four eggs, two pieces toast, juice and milk for breakfast, has been put on a liquid diet.

It wasn't the first time the 37-pound youngster's king-sized appetite got him into trouble. Mrs. Haines said he has eaten rocks, dirt and insects in the past.

Burke Stoneware

Stoneware pieces by Ronald Burke will be on display in the entrance hall of Mount Saint Mary College, Newburgh, through June 21. All the stoneware has been fired at 235 degrees F. and is entirely handmade. The pieces were made by the coil or slab method, and on the potter's wheel.

Burke, whose studio is at Rock Tavern Potteries, Weed Rock Road, has exhibited internationally, nationally, statewide, and locally. A large bowl, now on view at the college won a national award at the Museum of Contemporary Crafts in New York City. Permanent collections of his work are found in Ottawa, Canada, in a Canadian Government collection and at the University of Delaware and the Delaware Art Center, Wilmington, Delaware.

An instructor of the TAP Program sponsored under Title III of the Federal Government, Burke lectures at universities and professional groups. Besides making ceramics, he is now working in original casts of aluminum, bronze and iron items as commissions for church interiors and architectural planters.

Burke Stoneware

Stoneware pieces by Ronald Burke will be on display in the entrance hall of Mount Saint Mary College, Newburgh, through June 21. All the stoneware has been fired at 235 degrees F. and is entirely handmade. The pieces were made by the coil or slab method, and on the potter's wheel.

Burke, whose studio is at Rock Tavern Potteries, Weed Rock Road, has exhibited internationally, nationally, statewide, and locally. A large bowl, now on view at the college won a national award at the Museum of Contemporary Crafts in New York City. Permanent collections of his work are found in Ottawa, Canada, in a Canadian Government collection and at the University of Delaware and the Delaware Art Center, Wilmington, Delaware.

An instructor of the TAP Program sponsored under Title III of the Federal Government, Burke lectures at universities and professional groups. Besides making ceramics, he is now working in original casts of aluminum, bronze and iron items as commissions for church interiors and architectural planters.

Lamps, mirrors, a candlestick, a bowl, a teapot and vases are included among the articles now at Mount Saint Mary College.

Slate Contest For Composers

The composition should be for solo voice, minimum duration of 3 minutes, or for solo piano, minimum duration of 4 minutes. A cash award of $50 will go to the winning composer and an invitation to have the composition performed during the NFMC Biennial Convention in Albuquerque, New Mexico, in 1969.

The contest is open only to active members of a Senior Music Club belonging to the NFMC, who must declare his or her non-professional standing as a composer. The entrant may submit only one number, and manuscripts must be legibly written in black ink, or clearly reproduced from legibly written master copies. Performance time should be given. The manuscript must be submitted anonymously and accompanied by an official entry blank. The official entry blank may be obtained from Mrs. Freeman T. Eagleston, 152 North Drexel Avenue, Columbus, Ohio 43209. Entries must be sent to Mrs. Eagleston first class and postmarked not later than Nov. 1, 1968. To be considered for an award, the composition should merit presentation on club programs, said the chairman. Entry rules and entry blanks may be secured from NFMC Headquarters, Suite 1215, 600 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill. 60605.

Slate Contest For Composers

National Federation of Music Clubs has announced a contest for non-professional adult composers. The composition should be for solo voice, minimum duration of 3 minutes, or for solo piano, minimum duration of 4 minutes. A cash award of $50 will go to the winning composer and an invitation to have the composition performed during the NFMC Biennial Convention in Albuquerque, New Mexico, in 1969. The contest is open only to active members of a Senior Music Club belonging to the NFMC, who must declare his or her non-professional standing as a composer. The entrant may submit only one number, and manuscripts must be legibly written in black ink, or clearly reproduced from legibly written master copies. Performance time should be given. The manuscript must be submitted anonymously and accompanied by an official entry blank. The official entry blank may be obtained from Mrs. Freeman T. Eagleston, 152 North Drexel Avenue, Columbus, Ohio 43209. Entries must be sent to Mrs. Eagleston first class and postmarked not later than Nov. 1, 1968. To be considered for an award, the composition should merit presentation on club programs, said the chairman. Entry rules and entry blanks may be secured from NFMC Headquarters, Suite 1215, 600 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill. 60605.

PAUL NEWMAN turns comedian in "The Secret War of Harry Frigg," World War II comedy now playing at Kingston's Mayfair Theatre. Joining him at dinner in this scene is Sylva Koscina, muy beautiful Yugoslavian-born star.

HENRY FONDA falls for Lucille Ball and marries her despite the fact that she has eight kids and he has 10 in "Yours, Mine and Ours," the comedy in DeLuxe Color which is currently on screen at the Community Theater here.

TONY ANTHONY rescues a Mexican girl (Yolanda Modio) from the hands of a rapacious bandit in "A Stranger in Town," but is wily enough to take away the gold sacks hidden in her room. Taut western in playing at the 9-W Drive-In currently on double bill with "Rosie!" a comedy starring Rosalind Russell.

VIBRANT ROSALIND RUSSELL dances to the tune, "Everybody Loves My Baby," in "Rosie!" the comedy now playing on a double bill at the 9-W Drive-In. In this scene she performs on the stage of an abandoned theatre.

MOVIES

THE SECRET WAR OF HARRY FRIGG. Paul Newman is a comedian and he proves it in the often hilarious, always amiable situation comedy, "The Secret War of Harry Frigg." Now playing at the Mayfair here, "Secret War" has Newman as Private No-Class Harry Frigg, who is so inept at concealing his contempt for the World War II brass that he spends most of his time in the stockade for insulting officers. But, just as he did in "Cool Hand Luke," he escapes often; thus finds himself in a dream situation for any dogface—instant promotion to two-star general.

Out of the guardhouse and off on a special mission, the quickly promoted Newman is assigned to the task of effecting the escape of five Allied generals held captive in a Italian villa. And for romance, he teams with beautiful Yugoslavian-born Sylva Koscina, cast as the widow who owns the villa.

Probably no screen has ever held five funnier brigadiers—two Americans, two British, one French—played brilliantly by Tom Bosley, Andrew Duggan, John Williams, Charles Gray and Jacques Roux. Captured while luxuriating in a Turkish bath, they are now incarcerated in a luxurious villa. And they're having such a lovely time, they don't want to escape. Enter Private Frigg, escape artist extraordinary, to spring these goldbrickers by getting himself captured.

But when the new Major General Frigg meets leggy, spectacular Sylva, the whole escape plan seems less than urgent and he settles down to wooing the Contessa, while keeping the generals busy at calisthenics and Italian lessons in preparation for their escape.

Comes a twist to the plot at this point and the Allied group is transferred to a . . . But, if we told, that would give the surprise ending away and you wouldn't really enjoy all the bang-bang that follows if we tipped you off in advance.

A STRANGER IN TOWN. If you haven't had your fill of death on the TV screens this year, you just may be able to take this violent film in stride. Certainly, no punches are pulled, murderous or otherwise, and "Stranger" is one of the most catatonic, corpse-cluttered westerns on record.

There's this man—one man alone—who pits his cunning and strength against that of a vicious bandit and his murderous cohorts. He's the stranger of the title, but he's really actor Tony Anthony. Draped in a serape, he rides into town, posing as a U.S. Army captain. The town is down Mexico way and the stranger joins up with a gang of mustachioed Mexican villains, led by the bandit Aguila (Frank Wolf).

For a solid hour, there's gore and more gore up there on that wide screen. First off, the cynical Aguila ruthlessly lines up a company of Mexican soldiers he's captured and machine-guns them down as though they were toy tin playthings. Other fun and games include the gang at work drowning priests and kicking women in the stomach.

Pretty soon, the stranger is as tired of Aguila as the audience is and darn if he doesn't up and annihilate them so he can collect the reward on their broken heads.

This is a real "oater" as they say in the trade, and the sadistic scenes of unmerciful beatings, whippings, and supposedly terrifying gunfights (fought to the death with a machine gun) do nothing to save it.

A thriller to end all thrillers, the ads say. Wal, now, pardner, that's a right moot question.

ROSIE. How Rosalind Russell ever got on a double bill with "A Stranger in Town" is food for thought, but she's done it. Roz plays a vibrant, madcap millionaire grandmother of Sandra Dee in "Rosie!" the Technicolor comedy featured on the twin scene at the 9-W Drive-In. She's pretty much "Auntie Mame" all over again in the same sassy style, but this time she lives in Southern California and hangs out at the Los Angeles Music Center. Along for the ride are Brian Aherne and Audrey Meadows. — TOBIE GEERTSEMA.

YOURS, MINE & OURS. The old woman who lived in the show had nothing on Lucille Ball and Henry Fonda, who have so many kids that they don't know what to do in the sometimes funny-sometimes not "Yours, Mine and Ours," now playing at the Community Theater. One might think that 18 kids in one movie would be a constant source of hilarity, but that's not always the way it works in this film.

What we have in the way of a story is a Navy officer (Henry Fonda), who has recently lost his wife. Back on shore duty in order to care for his momless brood of 10, he finds the household cannot be handled like the taut ship he ran at sea. The kids rebel—from the manly 18-year-old down to the toddler.

A European Circus

What's happening at the big opening of the Colonie Summer Theatre's 11th season? Hetzer's European Circus is what's happening and it bows in at the neighboring Latham theatre on July 2.

This particular circus troupe has been compared as far as enterprise and imagination are concerned with shows produced by such master showmen as Michael Todd and Billy Rose. Hetzer's European Circus has toured the leading tent theatres of the country; features an all-star cast of continental performers in its center ring.

That means, of course, that audiences can expect clowns, acrobats, wild animals, aerialists, horses and jugglers—all of the highest calibre. Many of this season's performers signed on just last winter during a Hetzer tour from Portugal's tip to Russia's northernmost cities.

Czechoslovakian tumblers and Japanese acrobats will be working side by side when the circus plays at the Colonie through Sunday evening, July 7, with regular night performances and matinees on July 4 and 6 at 2 p.m., when children will be admitted half price.

Other attractions booked at the theatre in July include The Four Tops for one night only on July 8, and Lilo in Cole Porter's "Can Can" from July 9 to 14. Musicals and plays with top Broadway performers will follow for the remainder of the nine week season. Mail orders are now being accepted through Box 136, Latham, N.Y., for season subscriptions at discounts, single performance orders, and theatre parties at reduced group rates.

Tom's Tinfoil Disc

The Albert S. Carman collection of articles related to Thomas A. Edison went on display at Museum Village of Smith's Clove, Monroe, N.Y. on Sunday, May 26.

The collection includes photographs of Edison and his co-workers at Menlo Park, New Jersey. Of special interest is a tinfoil recording made by Edison during a visit of Sarah Bernhardt to Menlo Park while Edison was developing the phonograph. Mr. Carman's father was an employee of Mr. Edison at Menlo Park.

Included in the Edison show is an early Edison Home Phonograph, Battery and Electric Light Bulb from the Museum collection. The exhibition will continue through the season until Oct. 31.

ever, when Fonda goes shopping at a supermarket and runs into an attractive widow (Lucille Ball). The fact that she has eight unmanageable offspring of her own, ranging in age from 15 to tyke, deters him not one whit.

Brief courtship. Merger. Problems . . . Including sibling rivalries, bathroom jams, nasty remarks about taking on their new poppa's name from the Ball kids. But somehow it all resolves itself in a heart-warming ending and everybody faces the fade-out with a smile, one that covers the screen with some assorted teeth.

Fonda and Ball are marvelous to behold. Total assets to the film, the two old pros keep the levity moving when it shows signs of waning. Fonda is as dry as one could wish and Ball's slapstick is at its best. She walks away as a top scene stealer in one dinner scene and in another where she searches with squint-eyed earnestness for a false eyelash that somehow got itself stuck to her forehead.

Surprisingly old pro Van Johnson, too, turns out to be a superlative comedian. "Yours, Mine & Ours" could have been one of the snappiest best out of Hollywood if only the writers had left out a few of those stale situations and those antiquated wisecracks.

HORSE-POWER MOVED this "Dinky" trolley of 1888.

EARLY ELECTRIFIED trolley in New Paltz, 1897.

TROLLEYS at Schenectady's 1914 Fourth of July.

PHILATELIC FLEA MARKET

Middletown Chapter of Orange County Stamp Collectors Club will sponsor a "Philatelic Flea Market" on Saturday, June 29 and Sunday, June 30, at Fancher-Davidge Park, Lake Avenue Extension, Middletown.

Outing will start at 10 a.m. Saturday, and at 12 noon Sunday. The event will be held rain or shine each day until dark under the shelters of the clam-bake grove.

Intent of the Philatelic Flea Market is to offer a collector or an accumulator the opportunity to buy, sell or trade any philatelic material — such as

A shaded picnic grove surrounds the area, with a playground nearby. A philatelic-minded person may come for an hour or two; bring his family for an all-day outing. Bring your own outdoor cooking as fireplaces are available. Hot dogs and soda will be for sale.

A Philatelic Auction will take place Sunday, June 30, at 2 p.m. Approximately one hundred fine lots will go to the highest bidder. These lots will be on display starting at 1 p.m. Saturday, June 29.

This is the ideal time and opportunity for all collectors and other persons interested in stamps to obtain that stray item so badly needed to improve their collection. The variety of material offered will be endless and everyone should find something of interest.

Anyone desiring more information regarding the Philatelic Flea Market, may write to Alfred Racine, chairman, Box 314, Middletown, New York 10940.

LANGUAGE DIED OUT

The use of Aramaic, the language probably spoken by Jesus, died out in the 7th century of the Christian era. Arabic took its place, except in a few isolated villages.

Old Trolleys... Out of the Past

Remember when you rode them all the way to the end of the line just for the sheer fun of having somewhere to go? When you packed up the fried chicken and watermelon, along with the bathing suits and towels and took one of the open-air types to the beach? And when you were a kid on roller skates, you hooked a ride on the back of one, hanging on for dear life and bumping downhill over the cobblestones at break-neck speed, didn't you?

If you go way, way back, maybe you fed apples to the horses that pulled the first ones. Or rode the very first electrified or battery-operated model that was put into service in your town. Or lifted your skirts a discreet inch or two above the ankles as you climbed the triple steps to a seat. Later, you may have taken one to the festive Fourth of July celebration, the biggest football game of the fall, sightseeing in a strange city, out to the barns to watch the building and repair work, or just to cool off and beat the summer heat.

Perhaps you watched them change from small, horse-drawn cars to larger ones that rode the rails, their cowcatchers ready for trouble, their bells clanging to warn pedestrians and horse-drawn vehicles to move out of the way. Maybe you used them to get to work everyday, or climbed aboard only for that once-a-year excursion or picnic dozens of miles from home. And maybe, provided you were a kid, it was an adventure in itself to follow behind the sweepers and plows that kept the tracks clean summer and winter. And maybe the motorman or conductor knew you by name and invited you along for a free ride when nobody was looking...

An Era Ends

Then along came the bus and the car and it was all over—another era ended. If you think about them at all any more, it's probably with a trace of nostalgia.

If you'd like to recapture those horse-power to electric-power days again, if only through photographs, a little book (just published) is your ticket to the past.

It's called "Trolleys—The Forgotten Transportation," and it's a pictorial essay by John Papp, a former resident of Lanesville in the Phoenicia area of Ulster County.

Papp has been employed at the General Electric Co. for some 15 years. Now on the staff of the GE News in Schenectady as a photographer, he found himself becoming interested in the old Schenectady Railway, whose trolleys completed their runs to GE's Main Gate there. As a member of the board of trustees of the Schenectady County Historical Society, he found time to delve into the memories of yesterday; decided to put the vanished trolley car into book form so this slice of Americana might be recalled in hundreds of communities across the country.

In Old Chicago

Four photographs from the book are published here. But there are many more in John Papp's collection, including a close-up view of one of Schenectady's finest summer trolleys, and a battery operated trolley on the Madison Avenue line in old New York. You'll see a trolley wending its way through Chicago streets past ice wagons and free lunch signs; the sweepers lined up for duty; trolleys racing against horses and buggies; a motorman with watch-chain across his vest standing beneath the chimney of his late 1800's car.

Papp, who is a busy musician as well as a photographer, has also filled his book with photographs of passenger car interiors with their quaint lights, the old wooden trolley barns of the day, shiny double truck trolleys, typical street scenes of the era, and several shots of trolleys touring the nation's capital at the turn of the century.

The little book is a historical gem from the reproductions of men in handlebar mustaches and derbies, to pictures of old hotels, passengers of another age, and the forerunners of today's subways for strap-hangers.

"Trolleys" is available through John Papp, 58 Woodlawn Street, Schenectady, N. Y., 12309. — TOBIE GEERTSEMA.

PHILATELIC FLEA MARKET

Middletown Chapter of Orange County Stamp Collectors Club will sponsor a "Philatelic Flea Market" on Saturday, June 29 and Sunday, June 30, at Fancher-Davidge Park, Lake Avenue Extension, Middletown.

Outing will start at 10 a.m. Saturday, and at 12 noon Sunday. The event will be held rain or shine each day until dark under the shelters of the clam-bake grove.

Intent of the Philatelic Flea Market is to offer a collector or an accumulator the opportunity to buy, sell or trade any philatelic material — such as stamps, covers, accumulations, albums and any other material associated with stamp collecting.

A shaded picnic grove surrounds the area, with a playground nearby. A philatelic-minded person may come for an hour or two; bring his family for an all-day outing. Bring your own outdoor cooking as fireplaces are available. Hot dogs and soda will be for sale.

A Philatelic Auction will take place Sunday, June 30, at 2 p.m. Approximately one hundred fine lots will go to the highest bidder. These lots will be on display starting at 1 p.m. Saturday, June 29.

This is the ideal time and opportunity for all collectors and other persons interested in stamps to obtain that stray item so badly needed to improve their collection. The variety of material offered will be endless and everyone should find something of interest.

Anyone desiring more information regarding the Philatelic Flea Market, may write to Alfred Racine, chairman, Box 314, Middletown, New York 10940.

LANGUAGE DIED OUT

The use of Aramaic, the language probably spoken by Jesus, died out in the 7th century of the Christian era. Arabic took its place, except in a few isolated villages.

Old Trolleys... Out of the Past

Remember when you rode them all the way to the end of the line just for the sheer fun of having somewhere to go? When you packed up the fried chicken and watermelon, along with the bathing suits and towels and took one of the open-air types to the beach? And when you were a kid on roller skates, you hooked a ride on the back of one, hanging on for dear life and bumping downhill over the cobblestones at break-neck speed, didn't you?

If you go way, way back, maybe you fed apples to the horses that pulled the first ones. Or rode the very first electrified or battery-operated model that was put into service in your town. Or lifted your skirts a discreet inch or two above the ankles as you climbed the triple steps to a seat. Later, you may have taken one to the festive Fourth of July celebration, the biggest football game of the fall, sightseeing in a strange city, out to the barns to watch the building and repair work, or just to cool off and beat the summer heat.

Perhaps you watched them change from small, horse-drawn cars to larger ones that rode the rails, their cowcatchers ready for trouble, their bells clanging to warn pedestrians and horse-drawn vehicles to move out of the way. Maybe you used them to get to work everyday, or climbed aboard only for that once-a-year excursion or picnic dozens of miles from home. And maybe, provided you were a kid, it was an adventure in itself to follow behind the sweepers and plows that kept the tracks clean summer and winter. And maybe the motorman or conductor knew you by name and invited you along for a free ride when nobody was looking...

An Era Ends

Then along came the bus and the car and it was all over—another era ended. If you think about them at all any more, it's probably with a trace of nostalgia.

If you'd like to recapture those horse-power to electric-power days again, if only through photographs, a little book (just published) is your ticket to the past.

It's called "Trolleys—The Forgotten Transportation," and it's a pictorial essay by John Papp, a former resident of Lanesville in the Phoenicia area of Ulster County.

Papp has been employed at the General Electric Co. for some 15 years. Now on the staff of the GE News in Schenectady as a photographer, he found himself becoming interested in the old Schenectady Railway, whose trolleys completed their runs to GE's Main Gate there. As a member of the board of trustees of the Schenectady County Historical Society, he found time to delve into the memories of yesterday; decided to put the vanished trolley car into book form so this slice of Americana might be recalled in hundreds of communities across the country.

In Old Chicago

Four photographs from the book are published here. But there are many more in John Papp's collection, including a close-up view of one of Schenectady's finest summer trolleys, and a battery operated trolley on the Madison Avenue line in old New York. You'll see a trolley wending its way through Chicago streets past ice wagons and free lunch signs; the sweepers lined up for duty; trolleys racing against horses and buggies; a motorman with watch-chain across his vest standing beneath the chimney of his late 1800's car.

Papp, who is a busy musician as well as a photographer, has also filled his book with photographs of passenger car interiors with their quaint lights, the old wooden trolley barns of the day, shiny double truck trolleys, typical street scenes of the era, and several shots of trolleys touring the nation's capital at the turn of the century.

The little book is a historical gem from the reproductions of men in handlebar mustaches and derbies, to pictures of old hotels, passengers of another age, and the forerunners of today's subways for strap-hangers.

"Trolleys" is available through John Papp, 58 Woodlawn Street, Schenectady, N. Y., 12309. — TOBIE GEERTSEMA.

Tanglewood's Tempting Fare

25-KINGSTON DAILY FREEMAN, JUNE 1, 1968

The Boston Symphony Orchestra opens the 31st Berkshire Festival at its summer home, Tanglewood (Lenox, Mass.) on July 5. Music director Erich Leinsdorf, who begins his sixth season as the Festival's director, will conduct the opening concert, a Mozart program, in the 6,000-seat Music Shed. Each weekend through Aug. 25 the orchestra presents concerts on Fridays at 9 p.m., Saturdays at 8 p.m., and Sundays at 2:30 p.m. As in the past two summers the orchestra again offers weekend Preludes beginning at 7 p.m. for early arrivals to the Friday evening symphony concerts. The initial two weeks of the Tanglewood season will consist of chamber orchestra concerts with three all-Mozart programs and three to include works by Bach, Boccherini, Handel, Haydn, and Telemann. David Zinman will conduct the concert of July 12 with the five other chamber orchestra programs under the direction of Leinsdorf. Other guest conductors at this summer's Berkshire Festival are Aaron Copland (Aug. 23), Sixten Ehrling (Aug. 21), Josef Krips (July 28), Charles Munch (Aug. 17), Stanislaw Skrowaczewski (July 19), William Steinberg (Aug. 4), and the Boston Symphony's Assistant conductor Charles Wilson (Aug.

9). Mr. Krips, Mrs. Wilson's and Mr. Zinman's appearances will be their first with the orchestra at Tanglewood. Charles Munch will conduct Berlioz' Romeo and Juliet with Rosalind Elias, Jerold Siena, and Georgio Tozzi as soloists at this concert Aug. 17. Leinsdorf conducts a performance of Haydn's Nelson Mass on July 13, Brahms' Requiem on July 27, and an all-Wagner program on Aug. 24 to include the first concert performance of the Finale of Das Rheingold with Hanne-Lore Kuhse and Jess Thomas, Pianist Gina Bachauer is to play at each of the Aug. 9, 10, 11 concerts, and on Aug. 3 Malcolm Frager will play a version of Schumann's Piano Concerto he recently discovered. Arthur Fiedler makes his annual appearance with the Boston Pops Orchestra for the Boston Symphony Pension Fund on Aug. 14 and the Berkshire Music Center benefit, Tanglewood-on-Parade, is scheduled for Aug. 21.

A brochure with Berkshire Festival programs and ticket information may be obtained by writing: Festival Ticket Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. 01240.

Newport: Stalwarts of Swing

For the second consecutive year one night of the Newport Jazz Festival will be sponsored by a major brewing company of Milwaukee, Wisconsin. The Friday night, July 5 program of the 1968 Jazz Festival will be entitled "Salute to Big Bands." It will feature the orchestra of Duke Ellington, Count Basie, Woody Herman and Dizzy Gillespie. Dizzy's band is being reorganized especially for this evening and will be a reunion of many Gillespie alumni. Jazz fans will never have a better opportunity to compare the styles of these four great musical groups.

In addition to the above-named orchestras, other stalwarts of the swing era will appear on this evening, which promises to be one of the greatest musical experiences in the history of the Newport Jazz Festival.

Producer George Wein is bringing Charlie Barnet from California. The famed "Mad Mab" will play several of his famous arrangements with the Duke Ellington orchestra. Erskine Hawkins of Tuxedo Junction fame will play with Count Basie's band. Count Basie will also play a musical tribute to the late Jimmie Lunceford. Tex Beneke will recall the Glenn Miller era with the help of Woody Herman. Tommy Dorsey fans will reminisce with Jack Leonard, whose vocal on "Marie" was one of the best selling big band records of all time. Once again Woody Herman will provide the background. The brilliant Benny Carter will be making his long overdue Newport debut and will play with the Dizzy Gillespie orchestra.

"I have never had so much fun producing a program in all my years at Newport," said festival producer George Wein. "We never could have done it without the help of the sponsor." Wein indicated that there might yet be more surprise additions to this program that has such appeal to lovers of the big band era.

George T. Simon, author of best selling "The Big Bands" is the festival advisor for this program.

WHY WE SAY

BONES: A bonfire today can be a thing of beauty. But the word itself is far from that. Bonfire actually means bone fire. It was so named in 16th-century England because martyrs' bones were burned in large fires.

THIS "THINKER" IN PROFILE proved to be one of TEMPO's favorite paintings in the current art exhibition at Ulster County Community College. Somehow, with a slight bow to both Rodin's famous statue and the sparkling posters of Toulouse-Lautrec, it evokes memories of the past while keeping pace with modern youth of the 1960's. One of a large number of art works by students of the college, it is now on view in a show sponsored by the Visual Arts Program on campus. The exhibit will run through Sunday, June 16; is housed in two buildings: the John Burroughs Science Building's Gallery Hall, and the MacDonald DeWitt Library's Hall. The public is welcome to view the attractive art show any Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; will find that art students at our local campus are a talented group indeed.

Chorale Tours

The Women's Chorale of State University College, New Paltz, made a four-day tour of colleges and high schools in central New York recently under the direction of Lee H. Pritchard, assistant professor of music.

The forty-five members of the touring group made ten concert appearances from May 15 to 18. The program included a group of madrigal selections, a Baroque Mass by Lotti, three sacred choruses, German folk songs by Brahms, and contemporary set of choruses set to the poetry of e.e. cummings.

The Chorale also appeared for its 68th annual spring concert featuring the works performed on the tour. This year's concert was presented Sunday, May 26, at 4 p.m., in the college's newly-dedicated McKenna Theater.

PAW's Workshop

Bob Burges, the talented and imaginative director of Performing Arts of Woodstock's most interesting production of Holly Bey's "The Banana Thief," will begin his adult theater workshop (Theater Workshop I) on Monday, June 3 at 8 p.m. at the Little Theater, Tinker Street, Woodstock.

The workshop will include some relaxation exercises which Burges feels are essential to free the actor from unnecessary and limiting tension. The greater part of the workshop will be devoted to preparing workshop productions to be presented during the summer.

MISS JESSICA ROSENBLUM is the well-behaved young lady sampling the iced tea (with help from her mother, Mrs. Edgar (Cornelia) Rosenblum) at last Saturday's Woodstock Artists Association opening. The grand salon scene was occasioned by the first regular show of the WAA's 49th season in its newly decorated Gallery-on-the-Green. Hailed a success, the opening featured refreshments and beverages galore, presided over by Romy Villchur, and a new look for the familiar surroundings. Ethel Norton Howe's wash-drawing was snapped up by a purchaser almost immediately, and other fine works will be available during the two weeks run of the show. This first exhibit will be followed by a "Big Things" show, with all work to be exhibited at least five feet minimum dimension.

Madrigal Singers Set 'Music Is Infinite'

Mid-Hudson Madrigal Singers will present an afternoon concert Sunday, June 9, at St. Gregory's Episcopal Church, Woodstock, entitled "Music Is Infinite." The program will feature contrasts and similarities in music written for choirs and choruses from the Renaissance through the 20th Century.

As a special feature of the concert, the Madrigal Society will offer Patricia Hilgers and Hasbrouck Dougherty in several pieces for solo voice and piano.

Dougherty, a local resident, is a professional lyric baritone well-known in the Hudson Valley for solo recitals. He has worked with the Alba-Del Light Opera Company in Albany, sung with numerous Glee Clubs, and had his own radio program in Texas. His current special interest is to bring more musical programs into Ulster County schools.

Patricia Hilgers, a Woodstock resident, well-known for her rich contralto voice, received her formal musical training at Oberlin Conservatory; has sung with the Robert Shaw Chorale and the New York Music Festival. In the two and a half years she has been with the Madrigal Society she has given several recitals in the Hudson Valley area.

Beatrice Bright, former concert pianist and founding director of Mid-Hudson Madrigal Singers will accompany the soloists on the piano. She has arranged a stimulating, informative and unusual program which will begin at 2:30 p. m. and for which tickets will be available at the door.

Mumford's Best

At 72, Dutchess County resident Lewis Mumford is considered to be one of the great original minds of this century. Mumford, who makes his home in Amenia, has been called "a thinker ahead of his time" and, earlier this year, was named the winner of The American Institute of Architects' newly established and only award for architectural critics.

No one deserved the honor more for he has been a constructive critic of man's environments since the 1920's and his distinguished career has been almost totally devoted to architectural criticism. In hundreds of lectures at leading universities and in numerous books and articles, Mumford has delved into city and county planning.

Among his other honors and awards are the 1964 Presidential Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian honor to those who represent creative excellence in the fields of public affairs, the Royal Gold Medal Institute of British Architects; and a National Book awards for his 1961 tome, "The City in History," which—along with his book, "The Myth of the Machine," has been considered his finest work.

Just published by Harcourt, Brace & World, however, is a new book by Mumford, which is already receiving high critical acclaim. Titled "The Urban Prospect," it has the Dutchess resident putting his best thoughts on urban problems into print. And, more than any other man today, Mumford may well be the one who can tell us what can and should be done to save both our cities and ourselves.

'Facets of Gemology'

Star sapphires, star rubies and emeralds are among the synthetic gems donated to the New York State Museum recently by the Union Carbide Corporation, producers of Linde Stars. The gems will be used in a forth-coming museum exhibit entitled "Facets of Gemology."

The gem gift, which includes a variety of synthetic stones, is representative of today's synthetic gem market. The State Museum's current gem collection is of natural gem stones.

Of the synthetic gems produced today, the emerald is probably the easiest to recognize because of its green color. The star ruby, one of the rarest and most treasured of all gem stones, is duplicated as a synthetic stone with the same hardness, deep red color, and movable six-rayed star that is visible when the gem is cut and polished.

Linde Star sapphires and star rubies, which gave the same chemical and physical properties as their natural counterparts, have been on the market since September 1947. These gems are of such quality that they surpass the natural stars in perfection of appearance.

The New York State Museum exhibit "Facets of Gemology" will be a teaching exhibit and will include such topics as the difference between natural gems and man-made gems, how gems are cut, the distribution of gems throughout the world and in New York State, and illustrations of jewelry design.

The State Museum, a unit of the State Education Department is located on the fifth floor of the Education Building in Albany.

The gem gift, which includes a variety of synthetic stones, is representative of today's synthetic gem market. The State Museum's current gem collection is of natural gem stones.

Of the synthetic gems produced today, the emerald is probably the easiest to recognize because of its green color. The star ruby, one of the rarest and most treasured of all gem stones, is duplicated as a synthetic stone with the same hardness, deep red color, and movable six-rayed star that is visible when the gem is cut and polished.

Linde Star sapphires and star rubies, which gave the same chemical and physical properties as their natural counterparts, have been on the market since September 1947. These gems are of such quality that they surpass the natural stars in perfection of appearance.

The New York State Museum exhibit "Facets of Gemology" will be a teaching exhibit and will include such topics as the difference between natural gems and man-made gems, how gems are cut, the distribution of gems throughout the world and in New York State, and illustrations of jewelry design.

The State Museum, a unit of the State Education Department is located on the fifth floor of the Education Building in Albany.

TINY'S RAINY DAY GAME

Make five cards and number them

Put the cards in a hat or box and give each player an ordinary button.
Without looking at the cards, the first player draws a card and moves his button the number of spaces written on the card.

RULES: If a player lands on a space that already has a button, he must return to his last space and miss that turn.
If a player lands on a space having a penalty, he must do the penalty and miss his next turn.
If a player lands on a grey space, he must move ahead one space.
The first player to reach FINISH is the winner.
